Car in crash at north end of Douglas was total wreck, after snapping pole.

Three Injured in Saanich Crash; Policeman Identified as Driver

Three persons, one a city police constable, suffered serious injuries in a spectacular Saanich car crash at about 3.30 a.m. today.

Douglas Dobble, 31, of 1827 Quadra Street. He suffered a possible broken arm and shoulder and chest injuries.

Miss Jill Auld, 19, of 1153 Burdett Avenue, who received left hand and lower right leg injuries and multiple bruises. Her parents live at Qualicum Beach.

FAIR CONDITION

Royal Jubilee Hospital authorities said the two men were in "fair" condition this morning. Condition of Miss Auld is "fairly good."

The accident occurred on Douglas Street, between Dieppe and Vanalman, near Royal Oak Veterans' housing subdivision. Saanich police identified Brennan as the driver of a late-model car which was proceeding south on Douglas.

They said the car went out of control and careened about 700 feet before leaving the east side of the road and crashing into a stump and telephone pole.

The pole was broken by the impact.

Brennan, a member of the city force for less than six months, formerly was on the Vancouver police force for six years.

Police said the car was a total wreck.

HONOLULU PLANE DOWN; 23 IN SEA

Pt. Angeles Craft Join in Rescue

HAMILTON, Calif. (UP) — An Air Force C-97 carrying 63 persons radioed today that one of its four engines had failed 1,000 miles from the coast on a flight from Honolulu to California.

SEATTLE (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard said today that a Pan-American Airways four-engine plane ditched and caught fire 15 miles off the coast of Oregon. It said the plane carried 23 persons.

The Coast Guard immediately dispatched three amphibian planes and a helicopter on a search mission.

It had received no word since the plane ditched and was going to ditch.

A plane searching the area reported sighting three life rafts.

(The rescue planes were flying from the Port Angeles coast guard base across the Strait of Juan de Fuca from Victoria.)

SHIPS ON WAY

A merchant vessel, the Idaho Falls, was within 15 miles of the plane's last reported position and was being notified to join the search.

Coast guard boats also were dispatched from the Coos Bay and Umpqua lifeboat stations on the Oregon coast.

The coast guard said it had only fragmentary information on the accident, but the plane went down in the Pacific Ocean off Newport, west and a little south of Oregon's capital, Salem.

It said the plane's No. 3 engine was "almost falling out of its mount."

The Civil Aeronautics Administration in Seattle said the plane was bound from Seattle-Portland to Honolulu. It left Seattle this morning and presumably stopped at Portland to pick up additional passengers before heading seaward.

Ottawa Hears Bennett Sparks Prairie SC Moves

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Premier W. A. C. Bennett because of his ambitions to establish Social Credit as a national political force, will attract attention when he attends the preliminary federal-provincial conference to be convened here April 26.

The British Columbia premier is reported to have his aim fixed on becoming a federal political figure in the not too distant future. He is known to be striving to mould the Social Credit leagues in western provinces into a movement to try and displace the Progressive Conservative Party nationally.

Premier Bennett is the main driving force behind the scenes in promoting the expansion of

Hundreds Hurt As Catholics Storm Brussels

Violent Street Battles Protest Cut in School Aid

BRUSSELS (UP) — Tens of thousands of Belgian Catholics protesting a cut in parochial school aid defied a government anti-demonstration decree today and locked in violent street battles with 10,000 police.

Hundreds of injured, including a Catholic former premier, overflowed hospitals.

At mid-afternoon the government announced that 1,500 had been arrested. Yet the battle still raged through the city's main streets and squares.

From all sides, the Catholic marchers punched through road blocks to reach the inner city.

CAVALRY CHARGES

Police fought with clubs, tear gas, fire hoses and dumdum bullets. They staged cavalry charges. They drove armored trucks into the milling mass of fervent demonstrators.

Overhead planes were used to radio the rioters' latest moves to police generals on the ground.

Not since the rioting that de-throned King Leopold III five years ago had such disorder raged through the streets of Belgium's "Little Paris."

Object of the demonstrations was the Socialist government's new education bill which would trim $10,000,000 from the annual state subsidy of $70,000,000 to the Roman Catholic parochial schools.

"In this connection," said Bulganin, "it must be pointed out that the Soviet government has already proposed to hold a great power conference in the near future at which the question of an Austrian peace treaty could be settled."

Three Draws Mark U.K. Cup Soccer Semis

LONDON (Reuters) — Manchester City moved into the Football Association final round today by edging Sunderland 1-0 while York City battled to a 1-1 draw with favored Newcastle United.

Manchester won its old for the final round when Welsh international Roy Clarke booted in the winning goal.

First Division Newcastle seemed ready for victory as centre-forward Vic Kibble put them ahead of York 1-0 after 19 minutes. But Third-Division York's Arthur Bottom made a great solo run through the Newcastle defense in the 29th minute to knot the score.

York and Newcastle will replay their game Wednesday in Sunderland.

Gunshot Halts 'Revenge Riot' In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (BUP) — Eight persons—three of them juveniles—were in police custody today on varied charges arising out of a "revenge riot" at an East End dance hall Friday night.

The fight was believed to have started over the death last month of Buddy Pearson, 19, who died after being involved in a street fight.

Five of the youths appeared in police court today and were remanded until next Wednesday. The juveniles will appear in juvenile court next week.

The riot was not broken up until Constable Bailey fired a warning shot from his pistol after a 17-year-old youth had resisted the attempts of Constable D. A. Dunn to eject him from the dance hall.

IN PARLIAMENT

More Federal Aid Asked For Farmers, Miners During Estimates Debate

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

Parliament has received requests for more federal aid towards easing the crop and the marketing problems of coal miners in the east and the west.

Members urged the government to lay out more money for both sets of primary producers Friday as the House discussed the final set of estimates—government spending figures—for the financial year ending March 31.

Members from the main coal-digging provinces of Nova Scotia and Alberta wanted increased expenditures for federal subsidies that help the fuel to central markets and for development of a coal-burning gas turbine engine could provide an economical outlet for coal.

Prairie spokesmen urged increases—up to double the amount now paid—in reimbursement to grain growers under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act.

Meanwhile, the Commons voted to advance the government $517,964,000 to cover its April-May obligations for the 1955-56 fiscal year. This is a customary annual procedure. The amount represents part of main expenditures of $4,360,266,000 for the year.

On the supplementary estimates, the members were dealing with $53,994,000 that represents a clean-up of estimated spending of $4,367,794,000 for the present fiscal year.

Vote on Subsidy for CNR Deficit Delayed

The big item in the supplementary estimates, $28,758,000 to cover the 1954 deficit of the publicly-owned CNR, failed to get past the House Friday night. Progressive Conservatives delayed passage until the CNR's report could be considered next week by the usual House committee on the railway.

The government's coal and prairie farm assistance items went through unchanged, but only after members had urged increases in the coming year's appropriations.

On coal, C. E. Johnston, Social Credit member from Alberta's Bow River constituency, said subsidies should be increased to enable Canadian coal to compete more favorably in Ontario and Quebec with United States fuels. Subventions are treasury payments towards the freight costs on Canadian coal.

The government should appoint a full-blooded Indian to a seat in the Senate to give Indians a "mouthpiece" in Parliament, John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert) suggested Friday.

The Saskatchewan member pointed out to the Commons that Canada's 160,000 Indians had no representation in Parliament.

"One of the finest things this government could do would be to appoint full-blooded Indian to the Senate," he said.

The government hopes to wind up its aluminum bucket-buying program this year. Finance Minister Walter Harris said Friday he hoped a supplementary estimate of $100,000 for buckets would complete the project.

The government has bought some 17,000,000 buckets for maple sugar producers in the past 15 years.

It embarked on its bucket-buying spree in 1940 after it received complaints of lead poisoning from Canadian maple sugar products. It was found that tin pails used by farmers to collect sap caused the poisoning.

Finance Minister Harris said Friday night fishermen on Canada's east coast look with envy at fishermen on the west coast.

No Defense Funds For Civil Disaster Says B.C. Director

VANCOUVER (CP)—Federal and provincial civil defense funds cannot be used in the event of civil disaster, Maj. Gen. C. R. Stein said here Friday night.

General Stein, British Columbia's civil defense co-ordinator, made the statement at a meeting of the Greater Vancouver Civil Defense Control Committee, in answer to the question:

"Do the federal and provincial governments approve the use of civil defense funds for civil disaster purposes?"

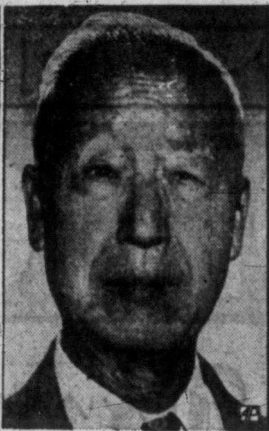

"I would say no in both instances," he said. "Funds being voted now are for training in case of disaster."

Red-hating Korean now 80 SEUL (UP)—Eightieth birthday of South Korea president Syngman Rhee—perhaps the most rabid anti-Communist alive today—set off a wave of merrymaking throughout this war-battered republic.

In a birthday speech to 40,000 Koreans, Rhee warned the United States "Communism must be stopped before it is too late and more free nations are swallowed up."

Rhee—the picture of health—plunged into the birthday celebrations with the bounce and eagerness of a much younger man.

CLASHES IN INDO-CHINA

Armed Sects Spurn New Peace Offer

SAIGON, Indo-China (UP)—Three rebellious religious sects spurned Premier Ngo Dinh Diem's last minute efforts today to avert civil strife in free Viet Nam.

Clashes were reported in the teeming Chinese city of Cholon, Saigon's twin city. There were no details.

Both sides—the government and the rebellious religious sects—were armed to the teeth. Armored cars and tanks patrolled the streets of Saigon to prevent disorder and troops guarded key defense installations against attack.

An ultimatum by the sects to the American-backed Premier to reorganize his government within five days or face civil strife expired today without action.

Diem called a meeting of the leaders of the three groups in an effort to halt the crisis but they boycotted him.

Diem is said to be not opposed "in principle" enlarging his government—but not along the lines demanded by the three dissident groups.

Guardian Only Daily Available in London

LONDON (AP)—Fleet Street, London's bustling newspaper row, was stilled today as a wage strike by electricians and maintenance men forced suspension of the city's nine main dailies.

The Manchester Guardian was the only national daily on sale in the capital as a result of the stoppage, which also shut the financial and sporting papers and the Communist Daily Worker.

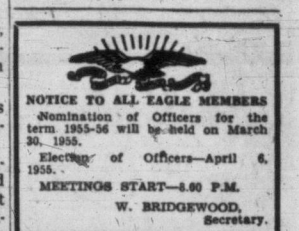

One union official said after a mass meeting that the stoppage probably would last into next week.

Sports enthusiasts were without late word from their favorite columns on two of Britain's biggest sporting events, the Grand National and the Oxford-Cambridge boat race, both scheduled for today.

London's 8,000,000 inhabitants depended on the British Broadcasting Corporation for news. The unions want new pay increases to meet the increased cost of living, but they have not made public what they are asking.

SERVING HOMES

SERVING COMMERCE

SERVING INDUSTRY

In April, 1954, the British Columbia Power Commission was established to improve the availability and supply of electrical power.

Its record of service during the past ten years is proof of how it has carried out this assigned task which has contributed so much to the higher living standards in this province.

In the past decade, this self-supporting utility has grown to an $80,000,000 Crown Corporation serving more than 56,000 customers... many of whom are enjoying the benefits of electricity for the first time.

Owned by those it serves, the Power Commission is one of the soundest investments the people of British Columbia have made in the future of their province.

Pianist Lorna Stuart Awarded Medallion at Festival Finale

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Victoria's 1955 Music Festival ended Friday night on an upward inflection as a near-capacity audience attended the First United Church to hear a program including two championship contests, a male voice choir class, and honor performances by winners elected by the adjudicators.

The B.C. Electric Rose Bowl, supreme challenge trophy of adult vocal winners, went to Mrs. Marjorie Sturgeon, who had won both women's oratorio and Grade A winners' classes this week.

Victoria City Medallion, grand award for senior and open class pianists, was presented by Mayor Claude Harrison to Lorna Stuart. Runner-up for the rose bowl was Miss Beverly Husband, and for the medallion, Lawrence Reid and George Essi-hos.

SPRITED SINGING

A special feature of the evening was the spirited singing of Victoria High School boys' chorus. The work of this group under Miss Norma Douglas had greatly impressed Glyndwr Jones earlier in the week, and at his request they were invited to participate in last night's program.

Victoria High School Band, led by Rowland Grant, delighted its listeners with a number of smartly played selections for half an hour before commencement of the concert.

Surveying the audience, Mr. Jones, in his final adjudication, commented, with a touch of severity beneath his customarily genial manner:

"It's good to see this church so nearly filled tonight. But those of you who have not followed the festival during the last week have missed some jolly good things. I've been there—I know!"

SUPPORT DESERVED

Emphasizing the festival deserved the fullest possible support from all intelligent citizens, Mr. Jones once more spoke highly of the choral work, saying choirs he heard this week could go anywhere, even abroad, and compete on an equal basis with others.

Referring to the two Chinese students who had made so successful an initial appearance with the festival, he remarked: "It is through the arts that a true international understanding is reached."

Meistersingers were declared winners of the male voice choir contest, with 171 marks. Two marks separated each of the other contestants—Victoria Masonic Choir and Arion Club.

Karen Dickson, who won a phenomenally uniform high marking in four junior piano classes, played two Bartok pieces and was presented with one of three Victoria Music Festival bursaries by festival president Mrs. William Ellis.

Mrs. Ellis said due to a lack of public support, the formerly substantial number of bursaries made available by the festival committee, were drastically reduced.

The two other festival bursaries went to Adele Gault "for setting a consistently high standard in several classes," and to Margaret McEwen for obtaining high marks in more than one junior piano class.

Certificates in lieu of bursaries, were presented to Norman Wilkinson, speech arts senior champion, and Jeannie Belcher, speech arts junior champion.

Douglas Nixon, CBU program director, came from Vancouver to present the CBC award for the adult choir obtaining highest marks. This was won by First United Church Ladies' Choir and consists of cash and a half-hour broadcast over CBC in the near future.

Victoria Registered Music Teachers' Association awards were presented by the president, Mrs. Winifred LaGrin, to Lynne Hammond, junior piano finals winner, and to Bruce Dutton, intermediate piano finals winner.

Stanley Peele, charter member of Victoria Musicians' Union, Local 247, AF of M, made the presentation of the Alfred Prescott Memorial bursaries, to the Victoria High School Band, whose performance had deeply impressed Walter Welke, University of Washington instrumental adjudicator.

SURRENDERED

Marjorie Sturgeon was equally eligible with Jonn Sawyer, violinist, for the North Kiwanis Club bursary for senior piano, strings and voice, but voluntarily surrendered the bursary to the young violinist.

North Kiwanis bursary for vocal classes, 17 to 21, was awarded to David C. Mar.

J. F. K. English presented the award of $100, named in his honor, to Merna Jenkin for maintaining a high average in several classes.

Instrumental classes only were adjudicated during day sessions, Friday, and following the junior band contest in the afternoon, Mr. Welke conducted an informal and valuable band workshop.

Results of the classes were as follows: Woodwind solo, 18 years and under; Dennis Tupman, 87; Earl Hobson, 86; Ken Walters, 82. Clarinet quartet: Oak Bay Junior High School, 172. Woodwind duet, 18 years and under: Dorcas Whitaker and Errol Tucker, 80. Brass ensemble (unconducted): Oak Bay Senior High School brass sextet, 81. Junior band A: Victoria High School, 267.

U.S. Offers To Cut Forces By 2 Million

West's Disarmament Plan Given; Russia Flatly Rejects Proposal

By K. C. THALER

LONDON (UP)—Britain disclosed today that the United States has offered flatly to reduce its armed forces by 2,000,000 men, France by 300,000 and Britain by 250,000 under a disarmament plan that Russia has rejected.

British Minister of State Anthony Nutting revealed to a press conference the first full details of the new Western disarmament plan. The United States has not disclosed the details. France disclosed only part of them Friday night.

Nutting said the West, laying down specific figures for the first time in disarmament talks, has proposed that the world's major powers reduce the manpower ceilings of their armed forces to the following levels:

United States, 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 men; Russia, 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 men; Red China, 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 men; Britain, 650,000 men, and France, 650,000 men.

Nutting said these figures would represent a cut under present levels of 2,000,000 men for the United States, 300,000 men for France, and 250,000 men for Britain.

Russia Counters With Own Plan

The Soviet Union has refused to say what such a cut would leave it with, has rejected the Western plan, and has revived its old demand for a flat one-third across-the-board cut in troop levels for everybody.

(In Washington, available U.S. intelligence estimates show that Russia and her East European satellites now have more than 6,000,000 (M) men under arms, including 4,500,000 (M) in ground forces. The Reds also have more fighter planes and submarines at their command. Communist troops thus probably have about a four-to-one manpower advantage over the West on the ground in Europe. The U.S. has 3,158,000 (M) men in uniform, including 1,300,000 (M) in the army.

(This explains why U.S. officials insist that any disarmament proposal advanced by Russia must cover conventional as well as nuclear weapons. The West's main defensive power lies in its air-atomic striking force. But if this power were drastically cut or nullified by disarmament without a similar sharp reduction by Russia in its conventional weapons, the West would fall behind the Soviets militarily.)

Reds Have World's Largest Army

Jules Moch, the French delegate to the talks which have been under way here for almost a month between the United States, Britain, France, Russia and Canada, pointed out that Russia now has the largest army in the world.

Since this is so, he said, the one-third cut would leave the Soviet with 3,500,000 men—more men than the U.S., Britain and France combined would have under their proposed ceiling.

Nutting said the west's plan proposes reductions that "would establish a fair balance of forces between the east and west, and would break up the mass armies of the world."

But he shared the view expressed last night by U.S. delegate James Wadsworth. In this, Wadsworth pointed out that Russia with its proposal for a flat one-third cut was trying to perpetuate Soviet supremacy in mass armies.

Nutting added that the Soviets will not accept the western plan and have evaded giving the necessary details for their action.

"When asked what the effect of the one-third cut would be on the forces of the Soviet Union, the Soviet delegate refused to reply," Nutting said.

"He would only say that this information would be given by the Soviet Union after the disarmament treaty had been signed."

Britain's disclosures, following Friday night's partial disclosures by France, stripped away all mystery from the western plan which has been before the supposedly top secret sessions here.

The disclosure was the west's reply to Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko's public release of the Soviet stand two days ago.

Daredevil Tries To Shatter Giant Ice Jam

Hangs From 'Copter To Place Dynamite

YOUNGSTOWN, N.Y. (UP)—

Army engineers began attacking a gigantic Niagara River ice jam with dynamite at noon today as inclement weather cleared sufficiently to allow an explosives expert to plant charges by helicopter.

The daredevil, powderman, Karl Dintruff of Rochester, N.Y., hopes to blast loose a massive, destructive 12-mile glacier which has caused more than $1,000,000 damage to riverside homes, docks and power installations.

RADIOS BANNED

Strapped in a harness slung beneath a helicopter, Dintruff planned to place 20-pound dynamite charges in crevices in the ice jam. These would be exploded electronically from the shore.

The whole area was blocked off and radios were silenced in fear their signals might detonate the explosives prematurely.

Some cracks were observed in the glacier-like pack from the Lewiston-Queenston Bridge Friday, giving rise to hopes the pressure was weakening somewhat. But the head of the jam remained stationary.

At the bridge itself, the ice towered some 35 feet above normal water level. But it was still about 30 feet below the span, and officials said there was no immediate danger to the bridge.

The jam was the worst in the lower river since 1909 when old-timers said the ice rose to within six feet of the bridge.

Cancel Jet Engines

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Air Force Friday cancelled orders for more than 1,500 jet engines from the General Electric Co. It explained the engines on hand were last longer than expected and fewer needed to be stocked for future use.

Boom in Mortgages

Demand for mortgage funds on residential property was higher in 1954 than ever before, says Robert M. Green, vice-president of Canadian operations of Prudential Insurance Co. of America.

He added Prudential was happy to lend its support to the year's record-breaking new housing.

Prudential's loans amounted to $48,400,000 against $32,200,000 a year earlier.

KER & STEPHENSON LIMITED, Victoria, mortgage loan brokers, were pleased to have contributed to this increase in mortgages placed.

Scelba in Ottawa, May Talk Armaments

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime minister Mario Scelba of Italy hinted today that he will discuss the possibility of an international disarmament conference with Canadian and American leaders.

Italy's foreign minister Martino said at the same time that such a conference should be held even if the current East-West disarmament talks in London fail.

"It would be made more difficult if the London conference failed but we must be tenacious and make every possible effort toward disarmament," Mr. Martino told a press conference.

Mr. Scelba said proposals for a disarmament meeting are not part of his scheduled talks in Ottawa and Washington but added that the subject is likely to come up during general discussion.

He outlined several points for negotiation on disarmament or any other problems between East and West.

1. There should be no negotiations before completion of ratification of the Paris agreements for entry of a rearmend West Germany into NATO.

2. No Western nation should take individual action on a conference. The Western nations should be fully agreed on their approach.

The Senate Goes to Work

THAT VETERAN SERVANT OF the Canadian public, Senator T. A. Crerar, is going to work again on the nation's finances. His Senate committee, which analyzed the spending habits of all our governments three years ago, will now bring its figures up to date.

In its first report the Crerar committee isolated a simple and formidable fact: Governments in Canada, federal, provincial and municipal, are spending a third of the total national income.

That is to say, the average Canadian works a third of his time for the state. On an eight-hour day he works 160 minutes, over two and a half hours, to pay his taxes. Some men work far more than this to pay their taxes, others far less. But as the Senate committee reported, the fact that the state uses a third of the people's total income is a matter of gravest concern, or should be, to all the people.

Senator Crerar, once leader of the farmers' Progressive Party, then a Liberal minister for many years (frequently quarreling with Mr. MacKenzie King), is too old and experienced to approach our financial problems in any spirit of partisanship. He is not concerned with this government or that but with the appetite of the state as a whole on its three levels of administration. And his former warnings are now being confirmed.

In his first report he said that the state might find it relatively easy to fill its coffers and balance its various budgets during a huge postwar boom. But, he asked, how long would that continue in less buoyant times?

Not many people listened to him then. Today, as he starts work again, the Federal Government is incurring large deficits, even though the national economy is producing hardly below its record figure of 1933. Even a rich province like British Columbia proposes to spend more in the next year than it collects in taxes. The sort of situation which Senator Crerar foresaw has now appeared and his warnings therefore take on a new validity.

As he is the first to point out, the federal budget is strained today by the large item of defense, which takes almost half of all federal taxes. No Canadian whose mind can stretch as far as the coast of China will doubt that the defense program must be maintained and few Canadians will grudge their share of its cost. The Crerar committee was alarmed, however to see nearly all other costs steadily advancing, not only in Ottawa but in the provinces and municipalities.

Part of this growth is the inevitable result of a growth in population which requires increased services. It is to be hoped that in its new investigation the committee will give us figures on the per capita cost of those services together with our actual means of carrying them.

Then we can see whether the state as a whole has lately increased its demand on the average Canadian's actual income. Is he working more or less hours a day for government than formerly?

If the Senate can answer such questions as these—a matter which the Commons seldom seems to consider—it will prove its usefulness to a sceptical public. And perhaps government at its three levels will begin to listen at last to Senator Crerar's warnings.

EXPERIMENT ON CHILDREN?

Within a few months thousands of children will be subject to inoculation in regard to Polio, their parents having innocently given written permission for the experiment to be tried out on their children. May I ask, who or what proof has been shown that this vaccine is really safe and proven, what has the Provincial Minister of Health done to find out? Who is behind this experiment? What has the Medical profession to say about it?

One can come to only one conclusion: that it is not yet proven, but in the experimental stage. If so, what is our Provincial Minister of Health going to do about it, is he going to let our children be made guinea pig for the experiment? It's time for action before the children may suffer or possibly be maimed for life.

RE SCOTT NEARING

Answering Messrs Bevis and Matthews:

Does the C.C.F. (a political party) really wish to invite Communists to speak? Would the C.C.F. Provincial Executive approve especially after Nearing spoke the same week under the auspices of the B.C. Peace Council (a known Communist Front)? I do not deny C.C.F.'s right to invite even Mr. Molotov or Tim Buck to speak under their auspices if they so wish.

My letter was factual in every respect and did not contain "half truth, error, or innuendo."

Scott Nearing's record dates back to 1905. He belongs to several Communist Fronts including: Friends of Soviet Union, the American section of Communist International of Moscow, Federated Press, committee for Foster and Ford (Communist party candidates for president and vice-president of U.S.A.), All American anti-Imperialist league, National Council of Foreign Born Workers, The John Reed Clubs, The Workers International Relief, The Garland Fund, National Committee of American Civil Liberties Union, Committee for free Political Advocacy, New Masses, International Labor Defense, International Workers Order, and others.

Nearing admitted being a Communist between 1927 and 1929 but denies membership since then despite his many front affiliations. He is now a correspondent for the Russian newspaper Pravda.

I have made a thorough study of Russian Communism in all its insidious forms and methods and I do not hesitate to admit that I am intolerant towards it, chiefly because of its attempt to infiltrate and take over the rest of the world.

OPERATION CODFISH

At the beginning of Lent, many of us, with the very best intentions, decide to make a personal sacrifice. As time goes on, it becomes more difficult to remember our vow, and the temptation to forget grows stronger.

Could this be because Lent, like Christmas, in our hectic life of today, has lost its true significance? The sacrifice—giving up cigarettes, sweets or some other pleasure—often becomes little more than just a gesture. May I suggest a way in which you can carry out the true meaning of this season, by devoting your effort to helping others?

The Unitarian Service Committee has pledged $50,000 worth of Canadian codfish to Korea. This protein-rich food will be distributed in hospitals and orphanages all across South Korea to help build up thin and undernourished little bodies. About 350,000 pounds of the codfish, a Canadian surplus product, have been ordered, and free ocean transportation has been granted by the United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency... but another $15,000 is desperately needed.

If each Canadian contributed towards our "Operation Codfish" an amount equal to what he saves by his Lenten sacrifice, the objective would soon be reached. If you saw a hungry-eyed Korean orphan waiting for his first and only meal of the day, it would not be difficult to remember your Lenten vows.

One single dollar will feed a child every day for two whole months with wholesome Canadian codfish. Just one dollar... to show a lonely wait who he has not been forgotten. This year, why not make your Lenten sacrifice a gift to an ill-fed Korean youngster?

LOOKING OVER MY SHOULDER

Back When the Talkies First Arrived

FREQUENT topic of conversation today is what television is doing to family and social life. Twenty-five years ago the new talkies provided a subject for discussion. "A Lover of the Beautiful" for instance wrote a letter to the Victoria Times in which she described them as silly. "Alas!" she or he said "now that we no longer have the beautiful silent screen I am forced to give up my one recreation. The talkies present so little in beauty and so much unpleasant sound."

Sir John Martin Harvey, back in England after a Canadian tour which included Victoria, made a prediction which is interesting in the light of after events. He told reporters the talkies would never endanger the legitimate stage.

Victoria federal civil servants were making a drive for salary assurances. They wanted a minimum for all adult males. You'll never guess how much: $100. The correspondence on the subject was awfully formal and polite.

Same day the League for Medical Liberty, sparked by chiropractors, held a great rally for full recognition of drugless healers, the B.C. Legislature spiked their guns with the unanimous passage of a bill limiting the use of the title doctor, to members of the medical profession. Somewhere along the line the drugless healers got the right to stay in business but not to call themselves doctors.

Major Stan O'Keefe was chairman at a reunion of the 67th Western Scots. Manager of the Red Cross Workshop for years, later head of D.V.A. in Victoria, Stan retired from the D.V.A. post about a year ago. Also at the party were Col. Cy Peck, VC, now retired and living at Sidney, and Maj. Gus Lyons.

The genial major who lost a leg in France was a popular man around town at that time. Dockyard Aubrey Jones, who was elected president of the Pacific Club the other day, says the major is now in Montreal as an executive of the liquor firm for which he was agent in this city.

Among entertainers at such parties in those days would generally be Ventriloquist Yorkie Bourke with his soldier dummy Jerry which he had used in concert parties overseas. The dialogue was strictly stage. Yorkie after years of running a fish store in town now runs a grocery store in Esquimalt. Long, slender Ernie Impett used to put over songs he had used as a pierrot in the Old Country and the once popular B.C. Electric Park at the Gorge. The ex-slender Ernie is now very much a heavy weight; retired now from many years as head painter in the federal government service.

In the Legislature an amendment to the Marriage Act was introduced which would have forbidden marriages between white persons and Orientals. It was turned down cold. The members also turned thumbs down on a proposal for health certificates before marriage. As mentioned in a previous article it was pointed out it wouldn't work because young couples would just cross the border to wed.

Names on the sport pages: Tommy Forbes, refereeing a basketball game—after overseas service with the New Westminster regiment, Tommy is now a shipyard worker; "young" Lynn Patrick for rolling up a lot of baskets, Isabel Crawford for winning baskets that gave James Bay team a victory. Campbell Forbes, now with RCMP in the interior and Bruce Forbes now on the mainland as an executive in the lumber business were featured as stars on the Canadian Scottish rugby team.

Canada's highly popular Jimmy McLarnin gave lightweight champion Samy Mandell, who was then after the welterweight crown, the most thorough pasting he ever had. Jimmy went on to build up an impressive record before he moved to California to run an avocado farm.

On March 20-25 years ago, Sooke got electricity for the first time. Power went to 75 residences, hotels and business concerns in a two-mile radius.

LOOSE ENDS

Fling Open the Door

THE summer cabin, seen for the first time in the pale sunshine of March, is always a staggering sight. And the reader will quickly add that it always elevates this column to a wild state of euphoria. I admit that I have reported the great Canadian springtime rite every year as long as I remember, and I give candid public notice here that I shall continue to do so until my last spring, so long as typewriter, cabin and owner hold out.

After all, there are really few news stories worth printing and the opening of the cabin is one of them.

It is the most striking version of the classic news story—man bites dog. For the owner of every worthless shack in the woods of Canada is at this season attempting as it were to bite nature herself, to carve his little preserve out of the wilderness, to defy civilization and challenge the scheme of things entire. After the long winter in the city, he applies a rusty key to a broken lock and opens his private door into a new world.

THE miracle is not that men thus repair to their origins, convinced that civilization is a sorry failure and the world well lost. The miracle is that the cabin is always there to welcome them after months of neglect, like an old friend who never falters in his friendship.

Miraculous indeed, considering that the Canadian's castle, unlike the fabled castle of the Englishman, is usually built of cardboard and yet proves more durable than stone. Obviously it does not stand by any principle of architecture, or in accordance with the laws of gravity. It contradicts all the principles of construction, denies every known law of physics and clearly is supported by some inner principle and law unknown to architects and scientists.

PLAIN TALK BETWEEN NEIGHBORS

'Without Forfeiting in Any Way Our Right...'

ON several occasions External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson has made the remark in public that the "days of relatively easy and automatic relations with the United States are over." This week two major incidents pointed up his view. Relations between the two neighbors were neither easy nor automatic.

The Minister's phrase, as originally used, has occasioned some criticism and misunderstanding. In Toronto, on March 14, he made clear that the remark was fully in the tradition of the friendly relations between the two countries.

But he explained that our relations are now so complex and varied that the simple process of living side by side has come to require consultation, negotiation and understanding if it is to remain mutually agreeable.

In line with this situation two Canadian leaders this week asked Washington for understanding and consideration. But they went farther than a mere appeal. They voiced warnings to Canada's powerful neighbor, warnings that this country cannot give automatic support to any or all decisions of the U.S. Government, that we have our own interests and our own programs which must be considered.

In Plain Terms

In the diplomatic field, Mr. Pearson made public in plain terms the declaration that Canada will not become involved in any localized war over Quemoy or the Matsus—these are, in effect, part of the Chinese mainland. Spread of such a war to global proportions would, of course, completely change the situation; it would be impossible for Canada to escape such a conflict.

The purpose of the remarks was obvious: to insist on the right of Canada to offer advice to the United States, when the course of U.S. policy could so vitally implicate Canada and its people.

At the same time the speech gave notice to Washington that Canada, the closest friend of the U.S., is deeply alarmed, not by the general policy of strength in Asia, but by the current program for deployment of force in connection with the defense of the Chinese offshore islands.

well become a world war. Mr. Pearson candidly admitted, both to the United States and to Canadians, that in such an event geography, history and our own interests would make it impossible for us to remain outside the conflict.

"What I fear most in this matter," the Minister told the Commons on Thursday, "is that even limited intervention, defensive in purpose, by the United States might have a chain reaction with unforeseen consequences which would cause the conflict to spread far beyond the locality where it began, and even cross the ocean."

To this Mr. Coldwell, the CCF leader, added an even blunter comment: "I don't want to see this country dragged into war by policies pursued by U.S. State Secretary John Foster Dulles."

HON. L. B. PEARSON
Fears chain reaction

The Ottawa attitude puts Canada directly in line with the expressed views of Britain and the rest of the Commonwealth. The United States now has it on the record and there can be no misunderstanding in Washington of our reaction to an unwise move in the Far East.

As Mr. Pearson put it in an earlier address: "It is a first principle of Canadian foreign policy (to maintain good neighborliness with the U.S.) without forfeiting in any way our right—and our duty—to maintain and express our Canadian point of view on issues as they arise."

It was observance of this principle that moved Trade Minister C. D. Howe this week to direct an equally candid message to Washington in protest against a proposed limitation of United States crude oil imports.

Certain oil interests in the U.S. seek a curtailment of imports on the grounds of national defense. To build too great a dependence on overseas shipments, it is argued, is to expose the country to the danger of shortage when warfare threatens the sea lanes.

As a foreign exporter Canada would come under the provisions of the restriction. But the application in this case would be ridiculous and the Canadian note, while refraining from so undiplomatic a description, showed by the weight of its arguments that this would be the net effect.

In any common war, Canadian oil resources must be a part of the joint war effort. Therefore to hamper their development by restricting exports to the United States would be a blow at continental security.

These arguments and others were set out in the message to Washington. What effect they may have remains to be seen. But they will serve, along with Mr. Pearson's pronouncements, to assure the United States that its northern neighbor, although secondary in population and world power, is determined to have a say in matters that affect its interests.

Only thus, as Mr. Pearson points out, can we maintain the "good neighborhood" which today requires that "we discuss together frankly a good many topics on which each could previously afford different and even divergent views."

Inland Routes

Canadian shipments of crude oil to the United States are entirely by pipeline, by rail or by inland water routes. To this extent they are even safer from enemy attack than is coastwise transport of American oil.

But the restriction would affect far more than the technical matter of delivery. It would run counter to the whole principle of GATT, the international agreements to further world trade. It would deny, too, the principle of the Hyde Park agreements between Canada and the United States, which co-ordinate the efforts of both countries in the utilization of strategic industries and resources.

In any common war, Canadian oil resources must be a part of the joint war effort. Therefore to hamper their development by restricting exports to the United States would be a blow at continental security.

These arguments and others were set out in the message to Washington. What effect they may have remains to be seen. But they will serve, along with Mr. Pearson's pronouncements, to assure the United States that its northern neighbor, although secondary in population and world power, is determined to have a say in matters that affect its interests.

Only thus, as Mr. Pearson points out, can we maintain the "good neighborhood" which today requires that "we discuss together frankly a good many topics on which each could previously afford different and even divergent views."

Taking the Cave Cure

LONDON—Britain's Speleological Society feels that it is on to a cure for rheumatoid arthritis and certain respiratory diseases. (What is a speleologist? A person who studies caves.) Charles Quarrell, secretary of the society and considered this country's top expert on caves, has long been puzzling over astounding cures that took place among people who sheltered from wartime bombing in the 22 miles of underground caves at Chislehurst, Kent. For three years 150,000 people slept each night in these caves and, far from suffering ill effects, it was beneficial to many of them.

Children who had whooping cough were cured after a week of sleeping underground. People who had rheumatoid arthritis for many years reported themselves cured. Others with bronchial troubles and asthma came out of their session of living underground free of their ailments.

Reyburn

Since then the society has been doing extensive research among medical experts, geologists and others who have become interested and the theory has been evolved that certain rock formations of the type at Chislehurst become radio-active stores and the radio activity in the air effected the cures. Further investigations are going on and it is felt that soon certain ailments may be treated by "taking the cave cure."

FOLLOWING LONDON: getting its first new hotel since the war—the Westbury—Coventry will have a new one. In April the Leofric Hotel opens there. Two proofs it puts forward that it will be the very latest in hotel design are (a) there will be a vacuum flask of iced water in every bedroom, and (b) each floor will be decorated in a different color so that there will be no fear of your wandering around the wrong floor looking for your room.

One thing it isn't going to feature, which I think a hotel would be smart to do, is free facecloths in bathrooms. Since they're such a nuisance to pack wet, hotel guests would really appreciate a free throw-away washcloth for the term of their stay.

Why is it to be called the Leofric Hotel. He was Lady Godiva's husband. For Coventry, this is a change. Every other pub there seems to be called The Peeping Tom.

WHAT WITH THE BOOKS he has written himself and the books that have been written about him, it might have been thought that every facet of the Churchill personality had been covered. But no. Latest additions to Churchilliana is WSC: A Cartoon Biography, published by Cassel. Cartoons from the British and foreign press cover every angle of his career from South Africa War days through two world wars to his present non-retiring period.

SYLVIA ASHLEY, still managing to look like a gay young thing of the thirties, is in town. It was suggested she should write her memoirs. Said the girl from the humble London borough of Paddington who had grown up to marry in turn Lord Ashley, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., Lord Stanley, Clark Gable and more recently Prince Dmitri Djordjadze: "What have I done that's so interesting?"

A BRITON just returned from a stint with the French Foreign Legion says that though there are 52 nationalities represented, few Englishmen stick it out. Most of them desert at the earliest chance. Reason: highest percentage of any nationality and backbone of the Legion is and always has been German. The English recruits can't abide being kicked around by blustering German NCOs.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Wonderful Book on Epilepsy

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Many intelligent persons who are suffering from one of the rarer forms of epilepsy, in which there are perhaps only psychic seizures, ask me where they can get some information about their disease. As these persons say, their physician admits he is handicapped because when he went to college they didn't know anything about psychomotor epilepsy.

Actually, these minor and strange forms of epilepsy are not so rare; the difficulty is that too few of us doctors have learned to recognize them. I am just reading a remarkable book on epilepsy written by a man who has devoted his life to the study of the subject. He is Dr. Wilder Penfield, founder and for years the Director of the Montreal Neurological Institute. In hundreds of cases he and his associate, Dr. H. Jasper, have explored brains under local anesthesia. By stimulating electrically various parts of the surface of the brain, they often have been able to find the diseased spot in which the epileptic storm was arising.

In some cases stimulation of part of the brain caused the patient to experience one of his usual attacks. In many cases wonderful cures have been obtained by the removal of tumors or bits of diseased brain.

There is a helpful section of the book in which the authors tell of advice that can be given to the epileptic patient and his family. As the authors say, the physician should always sit down with the patient and his family to answer their questions. A physician should stress the fact that seizures do not necessarily harm the mental development of a young person, and they need not cause changes in personality. In many cases there is every reason to adopt a hopeful attitude, and to expect a reduction in the number of seizures, or even their complete control with the help of the new anti-convulsant drugs.

The drugs should be given by someone who knows something about them, and can adjust the dosage, or change from one drug to another as needed. These medicines, in moderate quantities, will not interfere with growing intelligence, and they will not produce a habit. The patient should be encouraged to lead a life as normal as possible, with plenty of exercise. Fatigue, however, should be avoided, and alcohol must never be used because it can bring spells. The authors state that, "Persons with seizures should not drive a motor vehicle."

Often it is important to choose a type of life-work in which the hazards of falling will not be too great. Obviously, an epileptic should not be going about on scaffolding or ladders, and he should not work near moving machinery.

There would be as few restrictions as possible on the social development of the patient. Whenever possible, children should go to school. The young epileptic can often marry, but the problem of whether or not he should beget children is sometimes a difficult one. The prospective marriage partner should have an electroencephalogram made in order to make sure that he or she is not a carrier of the tendency to epilepsy. In that case the dangers to prospective children would be very great.

Week-End Weather Picture Across Canada

SYNOPSIS—Cloudiness was spreading over the southern B.C. coast this morning ahead of the active disturbance in the Gulf of Alaska. Rain from the storm was falling along the north coast for several hours and will spread southward to southern Vancouver Island and the lower mainland tonight. With the approach of the Pacific storm, the cold air which has been entrenched over the interior for the last few days will move southeast into the north-western United States. Temperatures in most of the interior will rise several degrees in the next day.

British Newspaperman, Author Talks to Canadian Clubs Monday

Joint luncheon meeting Monday of Victoria Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs will be addressed by prominent British journalist and author H. Frank Owen, OBE, former editor of the London Evening Standard and London Daily Mail.

Presently on the second lap of a trans-Canada tour of speaking engagements, Mr. Owen will arrive in Victoria Monday morning, leaving for Calgary the same night.

Subject of his address here in Empress Hotel ballroom is "The Survival of British Traditions."

Luncheon tickets are available at Digson's in Victoria, and at Davenport's Pharmacy in Oak Bay. Telephone reservations may be made at 5-5148, 1273 Hampshire.

Publisher of five books, Mr. Owen's latest is "Tempestuous Journey," a biography of Britain's First World War prime minister Lloyd George. It is a current best-seller and has raised considerable controversy in Europe.

During the Second World War Mr. Owen served on Lord Louis Mountbatten's South East Asia Command headquarters staff as lieutenant-colonel, and there planned, launched and was editor-in-chief of the famed 14th Army's daily newspaper "SEAK," and of the weekly picture paper "Phoenix."

In spite of the difficulties of circulation in the war-torn Far East, both publications were distributed to thousands of widely separated fighting men in the jungle.

Philharmonic Piano Quartet Here in April

Eagerly anticipated event on the musical calendar is scheduled for Tuesday, April 5, at the Royal Theatre when Famous Artists will present the Philharmonic Piano Quartet.

Ticket sale opens at Kent's Music Store Monday.

This famous U.S. group, each a piano virtuoso in his or her own right, has been adding to its popularity since it was organized seven years ago, presenting a repertoire which includes classics and light music, arrangements of moderns and masters.

The group consists of Ada Kopetz, Moreland Kortkamp, Emmett Vokes and Herbert Rogers. The arrangements are made by Moritz Hammond. All have previously given successful individual concerts.

The group recorded two albums for Columbia Masterworks, one entitled, "Music for Four Pianos" and the other "Popular Classics for Four Pianos."

We are seldom out of sight or hearing of one of the many inventions of Thomas Edison.

PLAYING A LEAD in the lovely Scottish play, "Lace on Her Petticoat," which opens tonight at Victoria Theatre Guild's Langham Court Theatre, Mrs. Downes is a great favorite with local audiences, both as a solo entertainer and a gifted character actress. She has done considerable professional work, appearing on several occasions with the former York Theatre Company and with the Lancaster Players at Pentlithy's summer theatre by the lakeside.

Mrs. Downes heads a cast of talented guild performers in this colorful period piece.

GRUBER CONDUCTS

Unselfish Symphony Workers Spur Conductor's Admiration

Today being only a day or two before the closing pair of concerts for this season, I should, properly, write about the music that will be played tomorrow afternoon and Monday evening. I must, unfortunately, deal with much more unpleasant but immediately relevant matters.

We, the musicians of the orchestra, receive, every three weeks or so, the applause and general commendation of the public, deservedly or not. We receive, and have no choice but take, all the credit. I have never ceased to regard this as being unfair.

Back of the orchestra, there is an extensive and multi-sided organization composed of many, many men and women, without whose strenuous, utterly selfless, albeit anonymous labors we should have no way of getting to the point of dressing up in our best formal finery, and indulging in the priceless privileges of performing publicly the musical masterworks.

ALL VOLUNTARILY No one who has never been connected with the board of directors of a symphony orchestra can have any conception of the task these people undertake—and undertake, of course, 100 per cent voluntarily. By comparison, our, the musicians', task of preparing and performing the actual music seems a small and easy one.

Knowing something about the directorates of many other orchestras, I am well satisfied that we are just about the luckiest bunch of musicians anywhere in the board of directors and the women's committee we have behind us here.

A GREAT BOARD The directorate is composed of 20 men and women; there are businessmen representing various fields, distinguished academicians, one professional musician not otherwise connected with the orchestra itself, one member of the orchestra.

EFFICIENT, BUSINESSLIKE I want to take it upon myself to answer that for you, and to prove that this decision, amongst others, is but another outstanding example of the board's efficient, businesslike, hard-headed, utterly realistic quest for a way out of financial difficulties.

Let us be quite clear, once more, as to the unalterable fact that one sold-out house can still not come close to offsetting the cost of a concert, despite the equally unalterable fact that the greatest and most cautious economies are exercised from day to day, despite the fact that the barest minimum of rehearsals are held for each concert with which I, at least, would consent to play a concert publicly, and despite the fact that the so-called "union scale" (a myth, in our case) for the musicians amounts to no more than the barest expenses, and for some of them not even that.

UNION GENEROUS And, speaking for the Musicians' Union, the officers of Local 247 have been for a long time among our most interested and generous supporters, having made, each season, substantial donations to the symphony society out of their treasury which is a great deal smaller than too many uninformed people imagine.

Now the system of double concerts works this way: All expenses remain the same as for a single concert, with the exception of the second rental of the theatre, which, however, for the Sunday afternoon, is made available to us at one half of the Monday night price.

BRINGING EXTRA REVENUE Since our musicians are "paid" (quotation marks intentional) for each "service"—service meaning either rehearsal or concert—we have simply cut out one rehearsal service and substituted a concert service. All in all, the two repeat concerts do not double the expenses or the loss; rather, the expenses are increased by only 20 per cent approximately, but the revenue of a complete additional house is potentially opened up.

We were, of course, by no means the first symphony society to think up this expedient. It is done in the majority of other places where the demand for tickets has exceeded the seating accommodation of a single house.

I hope you will not think, now, that the present financial crisis with which our board is faced is owing to the foolhardy system of double concerts. Quite the contrary. This system will, some day, alleviate the burden. And ticket sales have so far, increased measurably from season to season; it is true, as has been reported in the press, that one or two concerts this season were less well attended than others; the fact remains, though, that more tickets were sold this year than in any previous season.

WORTHY OF SYMPATHIES It is, obviously, not my place to appeal for funds; if for no other reason than that I am the only individual out of the entire organization who is paid in any substantial amounts. But, since you will undoubtedly hear about a drive for money, I have taken the liberty of giving some reasons why I think our board of directors, our women's committee, and our musicians are worthy of your sympathies.

Several music festival winners are scheduled for the program to be presented by Victoria Musical Art Society, Wednesday, the occasion of their annual talented students' recital.

Piano, vocal, violin, flute, French horn and speech arts are to be represented with performers being drawn from the junior, intermediate and young adult branches of the society.

The concert will take place at Victoria Arts Centre, Moss Street, at 8.30 p.m.

Senior students taking part are Gordon Britton (pianist), Charlotte Kaye and Patricia Chatwin (who will give a two-piano performance of Brahms' waltzes), John Sawyer (playing the first movement of the Mozart Violin Concerto in A), Lawrence Reid (pianist, playing Beethoven's Sonata, Opus 90) and Marlene Vance (who will sing a group of songs).

Russell Airs Views On Ethics, Politics

"Human Society in Ethics and Politics," by Bertrand Russell, Simon and Schuster. Bertrand Russell, winner of a Nobel prize for literature, writes with clarity, depth and a sense of urgency about passions and their effect upon human destiny in "Human Society in Ethics and Politics."

The author starts by examining the meaning of such words as good, bad, right, wrong, sin, guilt and conscience. He frequently employs historical events as examples to make his points vivid.

One of the more important of these is that traditional views on what constitutes the minimum vocabulary of ethics are mistaken. Russell argues, "the rightness or wrongness of an act depends upon its probable consequences, and not upon its belonging to some class of acts labeled virtuous or sinful without regard to their effects."

Russell believes that no authoritarian or superstitious ethic can provide a basis for a world peace or a world community. Love of power, love of excitement, fear and hate can now set off the H-bomb. If mankind is to achieve some greater destiny, it seems to Russell that the primitive elements in ethics and politics must be eliminated, and the gap bridged between human actions and a modern technology.

For Russell the bridge is that men "will have to learn, in all the powerful countries of the world, or at any rate in America and Russia, to think not of separate groups of men, but of man."

The last passenger pigeon died in the Cincinnati zoological garden in September of 1914.

Tighter Credit May Slow U.S. Business Pace

Boom Continues In the Meantime

By WALTER BREEDER JR.
NEW YORK (AP)—Business in the U.S. held to a fast pace this week, despite uncertainties over taxes and credit.

The outlook for tax relief for business was clouded by the action of the House of Representatives, which knocked out two provisions of the 1954 income tax law. They would have given very generous "breaks" to corporations.

The government's policy of guaranteeing easy-term mortgages came in for renewed attention. A top federal home loan official said mortgage interest rates are tightening up.

Record production of automobiles set the tone for a high level of business activity all along the line.

U.S. factories poured out 177,843 cars, for the latest in a recent string of new production peaks.

Steel operations—scheduled at 92.8 per cent of capacity—were close to the highest level in two years.

Crude oil output set an all-time record; cheque clearings in major cities and business loans—by leading New York banks moved higher.

Heavy construction awards were the highest for any week in 15 months, and total volume for 1955 to date was a whopping 63 per cent above a year ago.

There were other favorable indicators.

The department of agriculture reported a 15 per cent rise in exports of U.S. farm products for the eight months ended Feb. 28.

Two of the country's largest railroads, the Pennsylvania and the New York Central, reported sizable profits for the first two months this year. Last year at this time both were losing money.

Of interest to stockholders was a commerce department report showing an upward trend in corporate dividend payments. Corporations shelled out $261,000,000 in dividends last month, an increase of $17,000,000 over February, 1954.

A ratio of 2.4 times as much assets as current liabilities is considered sound and normal.

Too far below 2.1 is considered dangerous for final solvency. Some think too much above 2.1 shows a company not putting its money to work properly in its business.

Ward's ratio stands at an unbelievably high 7.07-1. Sears' is 3.48-1.

But Avery emphasizes his company has no debt of any kind.

Wolfson Would Change Strange Ward Politics

Challenger Would Do Away With Avery's Course of No Expansion

By WILLIAM FERRIS

CHICAGO (AP)—You won't find any sex at Ward's. Not in the catalogue, anyway.

Each year Montgomery Ward and Company mails voluminous, attractive catalogues to customers.

But unlike other mail order houses, Ward's does not display the human form in its books.

There's one pretty girl on the cover. In the autumn catalogue she wears a winter coat. In the spring catalogue she wears a spring coat. This is one of the peculiar Ward policies attributed to Sewell Avery, 81, its chairman, whose reign is being challenged by Louis E. Wolfson, 43, Florida industrialist.

NO PR DEPARTMENT

Other Ward peculiarities—all attributable to Avery—are its sedate, low-pressure advertising; no employee pension plan; a non-glamorous but statistically complete annual report and the lack of a public relations department.

All these, however, are insignificant compared with Ward's main distinction from competitors: its refusal to expand during the country's greatest boom.

Ward's has fewer stores today than it did when the Second World War ended.

Figures are dull. But they also are important to the real owners of Ward's—its stockholders—who must decide to retain Avery or oust him and put in Wolfson at the annual stockholders meeting April 22.

Wolfson argues that because of Avery, Ward's has fallen way behind its competitor, Sears.

Grain Exchange President Accused of Knocking IWA

WINNIPEG (CP)—Stanley Jones, president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, says he has no comment to make concerning a statement made in Regina this week by J. H. Wesson, Saskatchewan Wheat Pool president.

Mr. Wesson said the Winnipeg exchange had links with British grain officials in a "quite transparent" deal to discredit the International Wheat Agreement. He released correspondence between the two groups, which, he said, were attempting to discredit the Canadian system of wheat marketing and persuade Great Britain to remain outside the IWA.

Mr. Wesson said his contentions were based on a questionnaire and a copy of a letter sent by Mr. Jones to British millers and grain merchants.

The questionnaire asked whether Canada's system of pricing wheat was satisfactory and whether an open market price might be more satisfactory; whether the Canadian system or the open market system would provide most protection for the grain trade; and whether more Canadian wheat might have been purchased if the normal hedging facility of the future market had been available.

"These questions reveal the kind of poll Mr. Jones is concerned with," said Mr. Wesson. "The people of western Canada will have no difficulty interpreting the result of this poll now they know the type of questions asked and the people who will answer them."

"Mr. Jones' attempt to discredit the IWA and the present system of marketing Canadian wheat is quite transparent."

CHEQUE VALUES STILL GROWING

Victoria Clearing House reports cheques cashed by Victoria banks this week totaled $8,017,254.

This was $203,622 above the figure for the corresponding week of last year when cheques valued at $7,813,632 were circulated here.

WEEK-END REVIEW

Speculative Mining Issues Push Trading Records to High Levels

By HENRY BAKER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Interest in speculative stocks continued uninterrupted throughout the week on Canadian stock exchanges, pushing volume to new heights.

The Toronto exchange saw 10,080,000 shares traded Friday, the heaviest in more than two years, and Montreal established a record with 1,721,100 mining shares changing hands.

After advancing steadily throughout the week after Monday's moderate decline, the Canadian exchanges ended with a flurry of profit-taking which halted the upward trend and forced prices down slightly on the week.

FOURTH ADVANCE

The New York stock exchange, however, recorded its fourth advance Friday and closed only a short distance away from its record high set three weeks ago.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained 40 cents to $160.20 Friday, nearing the high mark of $162.60.

The Toronto exchange followed fairly closely the pattern of the New York advance throughout the week, although it slipped back Tuesday and Friday, and ended fractionally lower on the week.

Industrials, golds and western oils were down less than a point, while base metals, reflecting the heavy demand for lower-priced stocks, continued to climb and posted a 2.27-point index gain.

URANIUMS GAIN

Among uraniums, Radiore shot up $1.03 to $2.55 in active trading. National Explorations also gained with a jump of 50 cents to $1.50 on the week.

Others advancing included Canmet, Rayrock, United Keno, Baska, Brillund and Gunnar.

Bathurst and Maritimes led base metals up, each with a jump of 60 cents to $2.50. Other advances were made by Beau-cage, Quebec Copper, Coulee, Campbell Chibougamau, Lake Cinch, Steep Rock and Nipissing.

Among western oils, Merrill Petroleum jumped 70 cents to $9.20, Central Explorers 50 cents to $6.65, Canadian Williams 45 cents to $4.45, and smaller gains went to Canadian Oil Sands, Consolidated East Crest and Triad Oil.

Index losses: Industrials, 43 to 47.20, golds, 31 to 83.56; western oils, 82 to 103.24, but base metals advanced 2.27 to 168.42.

Montreal averages were slightly off too. Banks dropped 54 to 47.20, industrials 5 to 25.09, combined off .02 to 207.8, papers off 3.10 to 1.179.92, and golds up .294 to 70.92 and utilities up .7 to 121.7.

Canadian Gen. Electric Profits 1/3 Lower

Company Cuts Employment Force by 1,000; Foreign Competition Blamed for Setback

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. had net income in 1954 of $7,139,759 compared with $11,044,537 in 1953, says the annual report released Friday.

This was equal to $37.46 on 188,845 common shares compared with $38.13 and to 3.4 cents on the sales dollar compared with 5.4 cents.

Employment averaged 14,500, down 1,000, and payrolls totaled $54,310,265, up $184,837.

Net income was after deduction of all charges including $4,896,708 for depreciation compared with $3,160,194 and $5,700,000 income tax provision compared with $9,200,000. Div-ends totaled $1,387,360 compared with $2,333,436.

Current assets at year-end were $69,604,078 compared with $73,105,285 and current liabilities $38,625,078 compared with $40,901,403, indicating working capital of $30,979,634, down $1,224,248.

H. M. Turner, president, said the drop in earnings could be traced directly to the effects of competition from producers in low-labor-income areas outside Canada, especially those in the field of electrical capital goods known as apparatus.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CP)—A proposal by an American pipeline company to boost its exports of U.S. natural gas to southwestern Ontario by 15,500,000 cubic feet a year is expected to come before the U.S. Federal Power Commission next month.

The commission has set April 5 as the date for reopening its study of a many-sided application by Panhandle Eastern Pipe Company, which includes the plan to increase gas shipments to Ontario's Union Gas of Canada as a stop-gap until the Trans-Canada pipeline starts operating into eastern Canada.

However, claims by American consumers for more gas will take up the early stages of the hearing, and it is expected to be some weeks before the commission gets down to the Canadian phase of the Panhandle application.

Panhandle already supplies Union Gas with 5,500,000,000 cubic feet of gas annually under an export permit granted by the commission in 1946.

The new application calls for the sales of an additional 15,500,000 cubic feet a year until such time as natural gas from Alberta becomes available to the Canadian company in Ontario.

Martin Says One Canadian In Ten Belongs to Co-Op

SAINT JOACHIM, Ont. (BUP)—About one in every 10 Canadians is a member of a co-operative business, Health Minister Paul Martin said here this week.

Martin told members of the Stoney Point Co-operative that the 1,500,000 Canadian co-operative members carried on a business totalling $200,000,000 in the year ending July 31, 1953.

"The co-operative movement has made great strides since 1932," he said. "In 1932, the first year for which adequate records are available, the total co-operative business in Canada was less than $150,000,000."

Martin said there were more than 2,700 co-operatives in existence in Canada and most were engaged in the marketing of farm produce.

One-third of all the agricultural products entering commercial trade channels in Canada during 1953 was marketed by these co-operatives, he said.

Jet Fuel Load Reaches China In 2nd Tanker

TAIPEI, FORMOSA (UP)—The English language China News said today a Polish tanker landed 8,000 tons of jet fuel in Red China Friday while the world's attention was on the Finnish tanker Aruba, now sailing back to a Rumanian oil port after the crew refused to complete the voyage.

The China News quoted "intelligence sources" but a government spokesman said the report was not confirmed by any of the Nationalist armed services.

The China News said the Polish tanker slipped by Singapore and along the Indo-China coast and inside a Nationalist Chinese blockade to Whampoa Harbor near Canton.

True 'Hi-Fi' Recordings Do-It-Yourself Feature

The most thrilling new sound, week as a preview of what patrons of North Kiwanis Club's Do-It-Yourself Show may hear next week from Tuesday to Saturday at the Victoria Curling Rink.

Alan Macey of Macey Sound Co. has made a series of two-channel stereophonic sound recordings of Victoria Symphony Orchestra productions which will be played at the show next week in the curling rink.

Like high-fidelity recordings, they have "presence," or lend the feeling to the listener that he is right in the midst of the orchestra during its performance.

Not only that, the tonal quality of reproduction is very close to "true," and ranges with facility from resounding base to clashing cymbal without losing the intermediate sounds.

Strings come out as they are intended to be heard—full and distinct, and the lesser instruments are not lost in the general body of sound. Yet all blend as an orchestra should to achieve the full effect.

So accurate is the reproduction, orchestra leader Hans Gruber has had the recordings played back to the musicians so they could spot weaknesses in their performance for themselves.

It is expected Do-It-Yourself patrons will be able to hear the selections twice during evenings of the show, and once during matinee exhibitions Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

CORNER CLOTHES CLOSET, simply built of fir plywood, can replace a cluttered area in a kitchen. Simple construction details make this plywood built-in an addition any handyman can build himself.

Simple Clothes Closet

No one likes a cluttered corner of dirty overboots and outdoor clothing, yet in farm homes and in town, too, such a corner often goes resented for years without change. Why? Usually the space is there and all that's needed is to enclose the space with a neat closet. One simple solution to the cluttered corner problem is shown above. Anyone handy with a hammer and saw can build the closet.

Made of fir plywood, the clothes closet shown can be adjusted in size to fit the corner space available. Your lumber dealer can give you carpentry and paint finishing information and supply fir plywood and framing lumber needed.

The 3/4-inch fir plywood doors are hung with standard door butt-hinges directly over the 2x4 main framing posts. Hinges are let into the framing. If posts are painted a solid color to contrast with natural finish or wipe-down stain finish of the doors, a very attractive modular pattern will result. The whole closet could effectively be painted in solid color to match the color scheme of the room, if desired.

Details of shelf and floor installation and framing are indicated. Note that shelves and floor are set back behind the 2x4 main posts so that air circulates freely under and over the doors. This air circulation prevents mustiness if damp clothes are hung inside.

More Homes Get Air Conditioning

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—One of every eight homes built in the United States this year will have central air conditioning, a leading manufacturer predicts.

Richard M. Locke, air conditioning market director, said studies indicate about 150,000 air-conditioned homes will be built in 1955. Last year about 75,000 new homes were provided with central air conditioning.

Supervisors Go Back to School

BERKELEY, Calif. (UP)—Shop foremen and supervisors went back to school to learn how to get along with their employees.

For the second year in a row the University of California held a five-day seminar on human relations for foremen and supervisors.

Dr. Arthur M. Ross, director of the School of Business Administration's Institute of Industrial Relations, said the seminar aimed at developing more satisfactory human relations between supervisors and other employees.

"This seminar," Ross said, "is designed to aid management in achieving its goal of increased efficiency and more co-operative effort among its personnel."

Unusual New Type Textures

Furnishing with contemporary styles is fun and has its pitfalls. But it never is dull. Contemporary furnishings are the perfect foil for the unusual in accessories, but they do demand a careful and knowing selection, whether they're from Japan or Africa.

The fun comes because the decorator usually works with an enthusiastic convert or client who has always been contemporary-minded. The principles of basic, good design are the only limitations in decorating contemporary interiors for such clients. A feeling of formality can be created or a feeling of city-sickness or country elegance. In any instance, the imagination never is circumscribed by custom.

NEW TEXTURES IN USE

Fabrics and wall coverings are just two of the fields that have been reopened by craftsmen. Weavers have introduced new textures by the use of old and new fibers in new ways and have co-ordinated colors and patterns to such an extent that working with fabrics is as exciting as any part of interior planning.

ARTISTS AND MODELS will be on view daily at the Victoria North Kiwanis Do-It-Yourself Show in the Victoria Curling Rink next week from Tuesday to Saturday. The artist, Theodora Gubbels, seen at her easel with models Wendy Fee, top; Judi Joem, centre, and Cecile Sturby will demonstrate and talk on the fundamentals of sketching. The models will be featured wearing the latest fashions in beach wear, swim suits and sun dresses.

Do-It-Yourself Show Fun for Whole Family

Arts, Crafts, Hobbies for All
On Display at Curling Rink

The Victoria North Kiwanis Do-It-Yourself show to run in the Victoria Curling Rink from Tuesday to Saturday next promises to provide lively entertainment and valuable instruction for the whole family.

Demonstrations of almost every conceivable item in the fascinating catalogue of Do-It-Yourself hobbies and tasks from sketching and pottery to gardening and carpentry will be given each day by experts.

The show will open nightly from 6 to 10:30 except Wednesday and Saturday, the traditional matinee days, when doors will open at 2.

All proceeds will further community work of the Victoria North Kiwanis of which J. Casey Reeve of Saanich is president. E. Bowden is Kiwanis show chairman and Kiwanian Hugh Ferguson is in charge of booth sales.

Mr. Green says a number of the demonstrations will be the first of their kind to be given in Victoria.

In the arts and crafts field, experts will be on view at work with their potter's wheels to show how lovely vases are made and answer questions as to what tools to get, where to get them and how to use them.

SCULPTURE FOR MANY

Sculpture, it will be shown, is for the many, not just for the few students who have been studying the art in Victoria and who will be on hand with their instructor to show how quickly the fundamentals of the subject can be acquired.

Weaving, almost a lost art, is experiencing a revival now and it will be shown how easily a weaving loom can be built in the home or purchased for a moderate sum.

A Victoria woman who does her own weaving at home will demonstrate how facility in the craft can be picked up.

Cooking, one of the truly essential Do-It-Yourself tasks has not been overlooked and the show will display the latest in cooking methods and equipment with an expert present to tell visitors how to save time and vitamins.

Few women who do their own sewing know the full possibilities of the modern sewing machine but demonstrators will correct that with displays of amazing accomplishments in the field.

Many other hobbies and crafts have been provided for and in all of them expert instructors will be at the show daily to help beginners in them get off on the right foot and to help the more accomplished hobbyists become further advanced.

NO BLISTERING

One of the highlights of the show will be a demonstration of a new paint being seen in Canada for the first time. Developed by a naval technician to special specifications towards the end of the Second World War the paint carries a guarantee against blistering.

Experts in painting and cleaning things from a house to an automobile will demonstrate the correct methods and answer questions from the audience.

Another first in the show is a new type of lawn mower with miniature revolving blade that can be replaced for a few cents.

Building a boat may sound too ambitious for some Do-It-Yourselfers but the show will feature an expert with a 14-foot cruiser built entirely in his own backyard. He will display a complete kit of parts to build a similar boat and give advice on the method of operation and correct tools to use.

Movies will demonstrate the correct and economical use of small farm machinery and show amazing performances by new attachments now available.

Gardening experts will be present to give advice on any garden subject and a landscape engineer will instruct the most ambitious.

A bookstall has assembled the most complete shelf of Do-It-Yourself books ever seen in Victoria many of them having been specially imported for the occasion.

And to round out the show and justify its claim to cater to every taste, there will be a spectacular fashion show staged every night by the Hudson's Bay Company—for men as well as women.

Plywood Tips

Fir plywood panels commonly sold in big 4x8 sheets for the handyman jobs, large and small, are now available at most lumber yards in smaller-sized cuttings.

A solid, attractive exposed edge on fir plywood can be obtained by filling the edge with wood dough or putty and sanding it smooth. A coat of shellac before sanding will give a satiny finish.

Portable Electric Circular Saws Big Help

If you've ever watched a carpenter at work framing a house or garage, and have wondered how he can do so much so fast—the answer is simple. He was probably using a portable electric circular saw.

Few carpenters would be without one. With it they can cut through four or more 2x's in the time it would take to cut one with a handsaw. Should you ever have the chance to borrow one, and use it, you'll never be content until you have one of your own.

Of course, portable electric saws do not, and probably never will, replace handsaws. Both are here to stay. But the cheap electric handsaws are safe to use. They are not unwieldy—in fact their weight (medium-sized models weight up to 20 pounds) is often a distinct advantage.

Electric saws with circular blades come equipped with blade guards which open when a cut starts and snap shut over the blade when the cut is completed.

Equipped with suitable blades or abrasive cutting wheels, which are easily changeable, these saws will cross-cut, rip, miter, bevel, make dado or internal cuts in wood, or cut metal, plastic and many other materials. Depending on the blade diameter of a saw it will cut to a depth of from two to three inches.

Electric handsaws of major interest to private craftsmen range in size from six to eight inches (blade diameter).

Their depth of cut is usually adjusted by loosening a single nut that holds the saw housing in position on a vertical bracket connected to the saw table. Saw housing can then be raised and lowered on the bracket.

A similar adjustment permits the saw to tilt to the right for bevel cuts. On most saws the tilt-adjustment bracket is calibrated in degrees from zero to 45.

As an aid in cutting along a straight marked line electric handsaws have a notch or V in the leading edge of the saw table, in line with the blade. To start a cut, rest the tip of the saw table on the edge of a board and line up the sighting notch with the marked line, then press the trigger.

Before the blade is advanced into the wood, it should be allowed to attain full speed. This prevents overloading or stalling the motor. Should the motor stall, back up the saw without releasing the trigger, and wait for the motor to reach full speed again.

This type of saw has a trigger switch in the handle. It runs as long as pressure is maintained on the trigger.

In rip-cutting long boards electric saws show their true colors. They'll move through the wood nearly as fast as the careful operator can follow. Very little "push" is needed—the motor does most of the work.

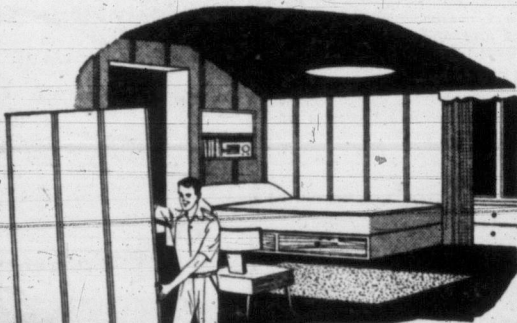

A rip fence is a handy accessory in this operation. You adjust it for width of the cut, then guide the fence along the edge of the board. No guide lines are necessary.

Another useful accessory is the saw protractor, which is calibrated and adjustable through an arc of 180 degrees, for cutting miters and other angles. Held or clamped to a board, the protractor blade guides the edge of the saw table through a perfect cut.

adding rooms is easy with PV HARDBOARDS (PRESSED WOOD PANELS)

Invisible Joints—Nails Concealed

Ingenuously designed so that every joint is invisible, the new PV Hardboards, Plank Board and Square-Tex, are the perfect paneling medium for home craftsmen. Low in cost, tough and durable, they go up fast and do a professional-looking job.

PLANK BOARD

This 4' x 8' panel of 1/2" thick PV Hardboard has a repeating pattern of vertical grooves. It nails, saws and chisels with ease, yet is so rigid it is applied directly to the studs without backing. Nails are concealed in the channels.

SQUARE-TEX

See how easily this smart 4' x 4' panel goes up. The deep-cut channels form a modern grid pattern—joints are invisible. Also ideal for feature walls of striking beauty.

Wood Paneling Standard for Rumpus Rooms

By MR. FIX

Wood paneling has come to be a virtual standard for recreation room walls. Thousands of home owners who have built living space into their basements attest to that.

Many of them have found that along with paneled walls, matching doors are desirable—doors custom-made of the same materials used on the walls. The reason is that matching doors blend with the walls, permitting the horizontal or vertical lines of paneling to continue unbroken around the room.

LOOK-ALIKE FINISHES

Another factor recommends them: it's easy to produce look-alike natural finishes on two surfaces of identical wood. But take an ordinary door, try to finish it to match paneled walls and you have a problem. Transparent finishing materials affect different species or grades of wood in different ways.

If polishing off a basement rumpus room is one of your upcoming projects, you can build your own paneled doors for entranceways and in-the-wall cabinets. The outlay of time, effort and cash will be surprisingly low.

An attractive, built-up entrance door can be fashioned by sandwiching a quarter-inch plywood panel between two face layers of 3/4-inch lumber paneling. This produces a door paneled on both sides, so that whether it stands open or closed it's a match for the wall paneling. Also, this door is 1 1/2 inches thick, the most common thickness of stock doors.

MEASURE FIRST

First measure the door frame and design the door with overall dimensions 1/2 inch shorter and 1/2 inch narrower than the frame. When the door is hung, this allows for 1/16th inch clearance all around.

In selecting tongue-and-groove planks for the face panels, bear in mind that when the boards are fitted together, the joints between them should line up with, or be even with, joints between adjacent wall planks.

Naturally this is of no concern when you are constructing a paneled door for an unpaneled room. In which case you simply select boards which, when fitted together with the outer tongue and groove of the assembly planed away, will produce the desired door width. If either of the outer boards must be ripped (cut narrower) to produce the desired door width, they should be cut to less than half their original width.

BY EDGE-GLUING

Door faces are built up by edge-gluing the boards and using bar clamps to hold them together while the glue dries. Four bar clamps should be used for a full-sized door. Fairly inexpensive ones are available from hardware stores, but if this expenditure is out of the question, you can easily dream up a wooden gluing jig to serve the same purpose. Clamping action is achieved by wedging the boards in the jig.

Use powdered casein or plastic resin glue for this job. When the glue has set, remove the panels and fasten them to the plywood sheet, using finishing nails. The nails should be long enough to extend through one side of the door, through the plywood, and three-quarters of the way through the other side.

Sturdy Children's Play Table

Your youngster will love this sturdy table that they can use for eating, reading, coloring, pasting—and the thousand other activities that occupy a busy kiddie's day. Attractive as it is durable, the table will look well in your recreation room, children's room or yard. You can stain the piece or paint it any color you want to fit your color scheme. There's no danger of tipping chairs or knocked-over table either. The parts of this strong, lightweight table are designed to brace each other. A one-piece top holds the legs rigid and the seat fits down over them, locking them securely. Simple, notched joints give maximum strength and make it easy for the handyman to construct. All the pieces are cut from just one 4 by 8-foot sheet of plywood.

Dirty furnaces are inefficient, waste heat and fuel. Spring is time to clean your heating system.

Spring Clean Furnace For Improved Service

By MR. FIX

It is easy to forget a furnace when the last flame of the heating season dies, but for its own good and yours—don't neglect your heating system. Keep it up to par by cleaning it or having it cleaned for summer dormancy.

There are a number of things the householder can do to ready a heating system for hibernation, but none are as thorough as the service performed by furnace-cleaning specialists.

Professional cleaners employ vacuum equipment to remove heat-wasting dirt and soot. With this same equipment they handle another job that no home owner could hope to accomplish by himself—that of drawing dust and debris from heat ducts throughout the house. If left there, the dirt is recirculated year after year.

LEAKS WASTE FUEL

Still another thing the pros do—and you can do the same thing in a minor way—is make sure the system is safe for next season's service by inspecting it. Leaks waste fuel and can be dangerous; broken grates should be replaced. Of approximately 250,000 furnaces cleaned annually, Holland Furnace Co. engineers estimate that 20 per cent are found to be defective.

First, and most important of all, check the smoke pipe that leads from your furnace to the chimney. If there are leaks in the pipe at joints or rust holes, then deadly fumes can escape. Leaks also reduce the draft.

Remove the smoke pipe each summer and store it in a dry place. If removal is not feasible, then open the furnace doors and leave them open throughout the summer. Air circulation through the furnace and pipes keeps moisture out and prevents rust.

Use a long-handled brush to clean soot out of pipe. Soot cuts down the draft and also leads to rust formation. When smoke pipe is reinstalled in the fall, seal the opening where pipe enters the chimney with asbestos cement. Seal leaks at pipe joints too.

Clean out the inner passages over the firebox with a wire brush. Soot within the furnace causes fuel waste. Remove accumulated dirt and soot in chimney bottom through cleanout door and clean the ashpit beneath furnace grates.

DRAIN OFF SEDIMENT

If yours is a hot-water or steam-heating system, don't make the mistake of draining water out of the boiler in the spring. This encourages corrosion. Merely drain sediment off the bottom of the boiler. Boiler may be drained and refilled at the start of another heating season.

Similarly, old-burner fuel tanks must be kept filled during the inactive summer period to offset moisture condensation inside the tanks. Make sure your oil-burner serviceman calls to make his regular spring cleanup and checkup of the heater. This is very important.

The same is true in the case of gas-filled furnaces. Let the serviceman take care of it. All you need do is shut off the gas supply valve.

Contrary to popular belief, gas and oil-fired furnaces should be cleaned and serviced as frequently as coal-burners. The cleaning is not as difficult, but just as essential to efficient, economical operation of the heating system.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Flowers for Churches

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. What annual flowers can I grow from seed for decorating a church during summer? Colors of pink and white preferred.

A. Snapdragons, sown indoors immediately, will give white and pink flowers for late summer. Godetia (pink), larkspur (white and pink), single aster (white and pink), 10-week stock (white and pink). Large yellow flowers, good for cutting in late summer and fall, are African marigold and zinnia.

Q. I have six cloches under which I would like to sow some vegetables, and some flower seeds to follow later. What would you suggest??

A. First, be sure that the soil covered by the cloches contains plenty of humus. This is necessary to hold moisture. Down early, short carrot (early nantes) and a few radish. Set seedling lettuce 18 inches apart and six inches each side of the carrot row. Midway between the lettuce, plant groups of three anemone coronaria; or thinly sow seed of any hardy or half-hardy annuals to be later transplanted into spaces vacated by the vegetables.

Only rags and those used in painting are fire hazards when thrown into uncovered piles. Spontaneous ignition can result. For safety, place such rags in a galvanized steel pail.

BEASTALL ADVISES

No Gardening Headway Made By Rushing Work on Wet Soil

Since my soil is still a water-soaked mess, little attempt has been made at outdoor gardening.

Exasperating as it is to see the weeds increasing in number and size, no good purpose is served by tramping over a wet soil, especially when its chief component is clay.

A small area has been lightly cultivated with a wheel-hoe to permit air to penetrate and hasten the drying out. Barring any heavy rains, this spot should be workable in a few days.

In the meantime, I consider an armchair and a dozen or so gardening books the best antidote for the urge to get started outdoors.

Not that I am totally idle. In the last week, a few thousand pots have been scrubbed, sorted, and stacked, and 20 wheelbarrows of compost have gone over the sterilizer, together with five wheelbarrows of sand.

The soil is Jack Beastall ready for the main indoor sowings of seeds, and for the flats into which the seedlings will be pricked out. The sand will be used for rooting a thousand or more cuttings which should have been taken a month ago, but were delayed by weather and soil conditions.

Next week (maybe), the flats will be overhauled, renailing the sides and replacing the rotted bottoms. But still the armchair and the books will be well patronized.

PROVIDE ANSWERS

No matter how old a gardening book may be, or how dull its author has made it, I have yet to read one which has failed to provide the answer to some questions or problem.

It is surprising how many have been pleased to take them off his hands.

It is in the older gardening books, those written during the 18th century, that we find explained the reason for many of the gardening jobs we now do as a matter of course, and thus they give us a better understanding of our work.

HORTICULTURE HISTORY

These same books will often surprise us with full cultural details of plants which we have just come to know as "new introductions," and we find they reached their peak of popularity 75 years ago, then lost favor and were forgotten.

To destroy these writings is to lose a history of horticulture for that period, a loss which may well be regretted in the future.

Sound Wave Used To Test Materials

CHICAGO (UP)—Sound waves may soon give scientists and engineers a better insight into the composition of a broad range of materials.

Dr. Howard C. Hardy and Robert W. Benson, both of the Illinois Institute of Technology, predicted that non-destructive acoustical tests will help determine other than acoustical properties of the materials.

The two sound experts said acoustical tests in the past have been used primarily in determining such properties as the sound absorption of materials.

The new tests, to be performed by sending sound waves through materials, will detect flaws so that deflections may be anticipated before they occur," the scientists said.

When a shellacked floor shows wear only in spots, you can "patch" it. Use steel wool as a floor cleaner to remove all wax or polish from sections to be repaired. Let the surface dry and then cover the areas with two coats of shellac.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Patricians of sport are the real lovers of the game, but at times they take advantage of the offside rule when it isn't called against them.

The present Western Hockey League series is a prime example in point, going as it has against Victoria Cougars. If you're not champs, you're chumps, to the fans, most of the four or five thousand of 'em, and each of whom has his or her own different opinion of what happened and why.

But for heaven's sake why condemn a player for being ill, which is what some of the Cougars were, and are, in this series, as it has progressed thus far.

The Cougars wanted no pre-game excuses and they wanted none offered the day before this series began as four members of the club attended sick parade under the attending club physician, who will bear witness to the fact.

"This won't kill the illness but it'll slow it down and make you feel better," the physician said in effect as each prescription was handed out.

Of Bill Davidson, the defenseman who played Thursday night when medical advice suggested otherwise, the same physician remarked:

"You know where you'd be if you had a temperature of 101; don't you?"

Then on the other hand you look at the club, and wonder, as does coach Billy Reay no doubt, how they got where they did—in second place—this year?

And yet the aversion to give them the credit that is theirs is predominant in its intensity and despite the fact the Cougars outlived the detractors that were thrown at them early in the season and beat four out of five other clubs doing it.

Fair comment is fair comment, but let's keep it fair. Coach Billy Reay has been extremely fair in his appraisal of the series to date, giving the dues to the Stamps for their fine play. He has not detracted from them in any way, and why should he? But, by the same token, if there are reasons, or what appear as legitimate reasons, why success has not followed where it was evidenced before, is it a sin to put them in print, providing always that the winners have been accorded their privilege? Which they have.

One team must win and one must lose; let's face it.

The Captain Draws a Penalty

And, too, we see by a reader's editorial comment, which we welcome (but would welcome more first hand), that we have stomped on Capt. Hobday's toes—Capt. Hobday, we surmise, being a rugged fan of long standing.

Capt. Hobday takes exception to certain remarks made here about rugby football. But like the day, in a moment of haste, when the city of Rugby (England) suddenly emerged in these columns as being in Cambridge, rather than Warwickshire, perhaps Capt. Hobday can now be accused of "feet up" in the scrum.

In correcting our error, which it was, he declines to explain that this same error was corrected in these same columns THE VERY NEXT DAY.

Placing Rugby in Cambridge was our "prime effort," writes Capt. Hobday. Declining to acknowledge our correction while pointing out the error was Capt. Hobday's "prize effort." Or has he yet to make his first mistake?

Closer Scrutiny Recommended

The good captain's comment that we described Oxford and Cambridge as "schools" and not "universities" is an abbreviation of fact. Cambridge—twice being mentioned as a "university" in the article. Concerning his reference to the "French beating Britons at their own game, rugby football," as a "snide remark," this was a revelation of fact, not fancy or disparagement; while his suggestion as a parallel—the Russians beating the Canadians at hockey—was covered in its horrid detail on these pages, the Russians getting what credit was theirs.

However, we do agree with Capt. Hobday on one item—rugby football is a fine game, having played it in our youth. And the more rugby football can do to preserve itself as the fine amateur sport Capt. Hobday asserts it is, and rightly so, then the more rugby will get the attention it deserves, from the spectators' viewpoint, a sports spectacle, and here, as in the past.

Quare Times Captures Famed Grand National

LIVERPOOL, Eng. (UP)—Mrs. W. Welman's Quare Times, trained by Irishman Vincent O'Brien who saddled the winners in 1953 and 1954, today won the Grand National Steeplechase over waterlogged Aintree race course today with Tudor Line second and Carey's Cottage third.

Two years ago the veteran Irish trainer sent Early Mist out to win and last year he saddled Royal Tan. Each of those horses had to negotiate 30 of the toughest steeplechase obstacles in the world to win the gruelling horse race.

But Quare Times went over only 29 jumps as stewards at the meeting eliminated the risky water jump from today's race because of the poor footing.

Quare Times was the third successive Irish jumper to win the Grand National, and his surprise victory saved the bankroll of the bookmakers who stood to lose a fortune had a favorite won. For heavily played Military Court won the Lincolnshire Handicap, the first leg of the spring double, and there were thousands of bets coupling him with the choice in the Grand National.

Cambridge led from the start and pulled away strongly in the last half of the 4 1/2-mile race to win the 101st Oxford-Cambridge event by a wide margin.

The underdog Cambridge crew finished 16 lengths ahead of the three Oxford rowers.

Cambridge's official time was 19:10. The record is 17:50 set by Cambridge in 1948.

Oxford was a 1 to 3 favorite to win the race.

The first half of the race was rowed in near record time. Oxford started at 40 strokes a minute to 38 for Cambridge. The two shells were dead level at the mile mark at 3:46—one second off the record set by Cambridge in 1934.

At the halfway mark Cambridge had a one-length lead. Up to this point experts rated it as one of the best races on record.

It was here that Oxford hopes fell apart. Hitting the rough water downstream, Cambridge kept their pace without faltering while the Oxford crew ran into trouble.

Cambridge's victory was its 55th in the annual race. Oxford has won 45 and the race was tied once—in 1877.

English Score 141

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters)—English batsmen scored 141 for four wickets under adverse conditions today in reply to New Zealand's first-innings 200.

A series of heavy showers wet the pitch, which became lively, and made the outfield so heavy that batsmen rarely gained full value for their strokes.

Anderson May Rejoin Cougars for Third Game

By BILL WALKER

Victoria Cougars could possibly have an old favorite back in action when they meet Calgary Stampede at Calgary in the third game of their Western Hockey League semifinal series Monday night.

Coach Billy Reay intimated Friday that if Barton Bradley is unable to play because of illness and the same ailment or injury strikes down another club member between now and Monday he will put Doug Anderson back in service.

Anderson has been sidelined for the past six weeks because of a cracked ankle bone. However, in the past 10 days Anderson has been working out regularly with the club, in addition to doubling as club trainer, and has been pronounced fit for duty.

Reason that Anderson cannot be injected into the line-up unless two present members of the club are declared inactive conforms with the WHL ruling concerning replacements. No club can call on reinforcements unless its roster is depleted to 13 men, two below the league standard.

"Anderson is ready," said Reay, "and I would like to use him, because he would help."

Meanwhile the Cougars leave for Calgary tonight confident that they can beat the Stampede at the Stampede Corral where the third, fourth and fifth games of the series, the fifth if necessary, will be played. Fourth game is scheduled for Tuesday, and the fifth, Thursday.

The Stamps, leading the series two games to nil, checked out of Victoria Thursday night following their 5-3 triumph.

Coach Frank Currie was equally confident as Reay, but declined to predict a series sweep.

Reay based his main hope for victory Monday on the fact the three-day layoff between games would give the ailing members of his club a chance to regain their strength. Five of the team have been suffering from the flu or heavy colds this week, but now appear to be on the mend.

The Stamps were at peak strength and fit when they left for home.

All games at Calgary will be broadcast over radio station CJVI.

PAINLESS OLYMPIC FUND-RAISING PLAN SET

Male Fashion Show Here Yet

Something new, real new, hit the sports desk this week. A male fashion show with all the trimmings.

That's the plan of the Victoria Olympic Fund committee to raise those subscriptions so urgently needed to finance Canada's 1956 Olympic Games team.

The event is the brain child of Harry Mitchell, president of the B.C. Track and Field Association, and it should be painless in its extraction and a barrelful of fun for all.

The event will take place in both ballrooms of the Crystal Garden the night of Friday, April 15.

The principals (rather "models") will be leading athletes from every branch of sport in the city.

These "models," however, misleading the term may be to interested males, will parade in the full regalia of the latest spring fashions.

The event will take place in both ballrooms of the Crystal Garden the night of Friday, April 15.

Canada's Swimmers Sweep to Victory

Beth Whittall Captures Two Firsts

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Canada is definitely on the way up in the swimming world and should do well in the 1956 Olympics, says coach Tommy Walker of Toronto, still beaking today over the four gold medals his women's swimming team won at the second Pan-American Games.

The young, strong Canadian girls, led by tireless Beth Whittall of Montreal, upset the best from the United States in four of the six individual women's swimming championships and took second place behind the Americans in the two relay races.

"This is going to do a lot to stimulate the sport in Canada," commented Walker shortly after 18-year-old Beth swept to two championships 15 minutes apart. "And it means we should do well in the Olympics at Melbourne. We are definitely on the way up." It was a powerful display of all-round ability that won for Canada.

In particular, the remarkable freestyle performance of Miss Whittall, a second-year student of pharmacy at Purdue University in Evanston, Ill., still had the swimming crowd buzzing.

SKILL AND STAMINA

For 30 minutes the eyes of the capacity crowd in the big swimming stadium were focused on her and in that span of time she gave an astonishing demonstration of skill and stamina to win two gold medals and help Canada finish second in the medley.

Miss Whittall won the 100-metre butterfly, the 400-metre freestyle and swam the butterfly the third leg in the 400-metre medley relay race—all within a half-hour.

Previously in the games, two B.C. girls won gold medals. They were Helen Stewart of Vancouver, winner of the 100-metre freestyle and Lenore Fisher of Ocean Falls who captured first place in the 100-metre backstroke.

Canada also finished third in the gruelling men's 800-metre freestyle relay and captured second place in the team synchronized swimming.

In grabbing most of the laurels on the final program Friday, Canadian swimmers earned 35 points in the unofficial scoring. Canada wound up a surprising third in the team standing for swimming and diving with 93 points, close behind runner-up Mexico which had 96.

The Games came to a formal end today with Olympic-like ceremonies in the huge National University Stadium.

Bud Poile Fined $100, Suspended

SEATTLE (CP)—Bud Poile, playing-coach of Edmonton Flyers, has been fined $100 and suspended for the third game of the best-of-seven playoffs semi-final with Vancouver Canucks.

Poile was ejected from the second game of the Western Hockey League series in Edmonton Thursday night for protesting a penalty to Hugh Coffin, Flyer defenceman.

Referee Paul Bozak ordered Poile from the Flyer box early in the first period.

Notice of the suspension from Al Leader, league president, said Poile was guilty of throwing paper cups at Bozak and going on the ice to protest a decision.

Edmonton won the game 3-0 to square the series 1-1. Vancouver took the first contest 6-2. Third game will be played in Edmonton tonight.

GRID CLASSIC COMES WEST

Vancouver Gets Grey Cup Final

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver was officially selected today as the site of the 1955 Grey Cup final.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Western Canada, which has been travelling East to challenge for the Grey Cup since 1921, is expected to get its first chance to host the annual football extravaganza in November.

Barring a last-minute setback at the annual general meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union under way here today, Vancouver will be named as the site of the game to be played Nov. 26.

Football officials are also expected to approve a move by the country's two major grid-iron giants to drop the 73-year-old Ontario Rugby Football Union from the cup playoff picture for this season. If they do, it will mark the first time in the 45-year history of the final that there has been no semi-final game.

NO OFFICIAL WORD—Although there was no official word on the site chosen for the annual fall football classic, eastern and western delegates indicated that Vancouver's bid to cage the game had won out over Montreal and Toronto.

Jim McCaffery of Ottawa, incoming CRU president, said both the Western Interprovincial Football Union and the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union would vote in favor of Vancouver "unless something unforeseen occurs." The two major leagues command six of the 10 CRU votes enough to settle the issue.

The CRU, Canada's oldest football league and five-times winner of the coveted cup, was reliably reported to have agreed to drop out of the championship playoff picture on condition they obtained financial compensation and a guarantee of future right to challenge for the cup.

FOR GREY CUP DAY

Hotel Reservations Going Fast

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hotel reservations already are being snapped up in Vancouver for Grey Cup day Nov. 26.

It was learned Friday night that a number of football executives from both eastern and western Canada have made reservations at Vancouver's posh Hotel Vancouver for Nov. 26.

The Canadian football final traditionally is played the last Saturday in November, this year Nov. 26.

The reservation clerk at the hotel confirmed Friday night that there had been an "unusually high" number of reservations made for Nov. 26, but did not disclose the names of persons making reservations.

Junior Grid Support Urged by CRU

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada's senior football clubs were urged today to put greater effort into development of the country's young players.

"Senior football cannot operate without Canadian players," the junior committee of the Canadian Rugby Union said in a report released today. The report was prepared for presentation at the CRU annual general meeting under way here.

"We strongly suggest to the senior unions of the CRU that greater efforts be made to assist in the expansion and development of junior football," the committee said.

To back up its argument that Canada's 26 junior clubs stretching from Vancouver Island to the Maritimes already have proven a top source of football material, the committee pointed out that 36 per cent of the players dressed for the Edmonton-Montreal Grey Cup final in Toronto last November were graduates of Canadian junior ranks.

BASKETBALL PLAYOFF

The Saanich and Suburban Basketball League juvenile girls' semi-final playoff series opens tonight at 8 in the Saanichton Agricultural Hall between Brentwood and Saanichton Copley Bros. This will be the first game in a two-game total-point competition.

Turn-About Tenpin Style

By RON COULTER

What's the story behind the latest City Women's Tenpin Association meeting?

First of all, they elected a new slate of officers for next season. They also had a change of mind and voted the Arcade Perpetual Trophy back into competition—for Victoria teams only naturally. Officers for next season will be: Jessie Vashers, president; Ev Angus, vice-president; Nan Burns, secretary; and Jean Gray, sergeant at arms.

At a previous meeting, the city gals "outlawed" the Arcade Trophy, saying that donors of the bauble didn't want it to leave the city. The trophy has been up for competition for teams in the annual tournament since 1942.

Brown, Coates This Week's Best

George Brown and Bill Coates were the big men in tenpin action this week.

Rolling in Gibson's commercial section, Brown hit for games of 194, 223 and 204 for a 621 total. Coates shot singletons of 218, 204 and 193 for a 615 series in the senior loop.

Dave Doolittle, 583, Alex Quinn, 580; George Motion, 585; Ken Munn, 554; Bill Norris and Ron Wilson, 553, and Len Parsons and Len Murrant, 551, shot other highs in senior league.

Doolittle, 597; Dick Bowles, and R. Glays, 589; Bud Marty, 584; Pat Graham, 575; Jim John, 574; Connie McBeth, 570; Munn, 564; Frank Doherty, 563, and Hugh Bryan, 559, claimed other notable highs in commercial tens.

In mixed tens, Mary Dykes led the women with a 532 triple and Jane Munn checked in a 512 effort. Jean Gray notched a 201 single and Lorna Luney pounded out 199.

Ted Kennedy To Retire; Clancy Hopeful

TORONTO (CP)—Ted Kennedy, the centre Toronto Maple Leafs thought so much of that he could call his own contract terms, probably will ride out of hockey with a losing team. This is his final big-league campaign.

"I'm finished after this season," Kennedy said Friday "I'm not coming back."

He reiterated his retirement plans on the eve of the third game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals between Leafs and Detroit Red Wings. Detroit leads the set 2-0. Even Kennedy is pessimistic about Leafs chances.

"This club has yet to prove itself," he commented after returning from Detroit where Wings defeated the Toronto club 7-4 Tuesday and 2-1 Thursday.

However, Toronto coach King Clancy thinks the Wings are overrated.

SPORTSMEN WIN FIGHT

Inlet Beaches To Be Cleared

The Lower Island Amalgamated Sportsmen's Association scored a victory this week on the contentious issue surrounding logging in the Saanich Inlet sports fishing grounds.

Local anglers have complained bitterly that slash from logging has been left on beaches and, when swept out by tides, became a menace to sports fishermen's boats, particularly in the popular McKenzie Bay area.

A settlement was reached this week following a thorough investigation when logging interests were ordered to clear the beaches from McKenzie Bay to Repulse Rock of all slash resulting from logging.

At the recent election of officers for the sportsmen's body, Ray Ritchie was named president; Andy Anderson, vice-president; and Don Keirs, secretary.

The association is sending a letter to the Commercial Fishermen's Union, seeking a meeting to discuss more stringent regulations covering issuance of commercial licenses to fishermen who do not derive at least 50 per cent of their total income from fishing.

Also under consideration is a meeting with chief fisheries biologist P. A. Larkin of Vancouver to investigate the advantages of having Saanich Inlet come under the jurisdiction of the provincial government.

Bonus Rule Adopted In Hoop Rule Change

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—The National Basketball Rules Committee of the United States and Canada has enacted the bonus rule for the entire 40 minutes of play and made five other changes in regulations of the game.

The new bonus rule means that one free throw will be awarded on each foul, with another shot if the first is good, throughout the game. Previously, that rule was effective only for first 37 minutes, with two free shots awarded for each foul in the final three minutes.

MOLY OIL

The Molybdenum Disulphide Engine Treatment

MOLYBDENUM DISULPHIDE (MoS₂) is truly a super lubricant engine treatment that, even in a comparison under conditions ideal for others, has proven itself superior to all.

"Moly-Oil" is not a penetrating type oil additive, not a cleaner, no graphite, no lead, but is a true friction reducing lubricant containing, as its basic ingredient, the best lubricant known—Molybdenum Disulphide. By a secret process the MoS₂ is suspended in special carrier and a very fine lubricating oil.

"Moly Oil" not only imbeds itself in the pores of the metal but actually plates out on the metal friction surfaces, thus giving practically wearproof surfaces of "Moly".

Molybdenum Disulphide is a very stable, non-corrosive and corrosion inhibiting material, there is always lubrication on the surfaces which cannot drain away or be squeezed out, eliminating "dry starts," a great source of wear.

"Moly Oil" can be used anywhere in conjunction with a mineral-based oil, and its use is beneficial with detergent as well as non-detergent oils. In a very few instances it is necessary to remove or bypass the filter cartridge of the oil filter.

Scientists have determined that the lubricating properties of Molybdenum Disulphide are the result of its laminar type crystal structure, the particles of which, under operating conditions, tend to align themselves in ever increasing better arrangement. Unlike other similar lubricants, the "Moly" lubricating action does not depend on the presence of moisture. These are the main reasons for the very high lubricating value of "Moly", and why its frictional decreasing properties continue to increase with heat and pressure.

Molybdenum Disulphide lubricated parts will withstand terrific pressures and also will operate under extreme temperature conditions (about -40 deg. F. to plus 1200 deg. F.). Reference Massachusetts Institute of Technology Liaison Office item number 52-57 Lubricating Properties of MoS₂.

Used in small air-cooled engines, power saws, outboard motors, lawn-mower engines, etc., it increased operating efficiency to a startling degree.

It is marketed under the trade name of Sharp's Moly Oil for cars, Sharp's AquaMoly for boats and Sharp's Tractor Moly for farms and industrial use.

Automotive wholesalers are Gordon Fish, Ltd., and marine wholesalers are Ship Chandlers (McQuade's) Ltd.

UBC Crew Seeks to Repeat; Sports Fans Asked to Help

Perhaps Canada's greatest achievement in the 1954 British Empire Games was the tremendous victory scored by the University of British Columbia eight-man rowing crew.

Completely unheralded, except in local circles, the UBC eight carried Canada's banner into the shell race on the Vedder Canal and finished first with a clear three-length lead over the famous Thames Rowing Club of England.

As a result of that courageous victory, the UBC crew has received an invitation to compete in the elite Royal Henley Regatta in England this June against the greatest crews in the world.

However, before coach Frank Read and his crew can make the trip to the world series of rowing, the sum of $25,000 must be raised to pay their travelling expenses.

One of the first contributions to the fund was the donation of a $2,400 Pocock shell to the crew by Col. Victor Spencer.

But much more is needed. And the support of every sports fan in the province, particularly the UBC Alumni, now is being sought to make it possible for Read and his Cinderella crew to make the trip to Henley. The crew is made up of students from all parts of the province, including Vancouver Island.

The crew was gathered together in March of last year by coach Read. Majority of its members had never rowed before. They had no money, no shell of their own, no indoor practice facilities and their only available stretch of practice water, Coal Harbor, was termed "impossible" by rowing authorities.

However, practising from dawn to breakfast, and from supper until dark, Read whipped his crew members into shape and instilled in them a tremendous competitive spirit.

Then came their unforgettable victory in the Empire Games.

If they are to seek new glory, they must have help to represent Canada and the province at Henley. The help, in the form of financial support, can be sent to "Rowing," The UBC Development Fund, 201 Brock Hall, UBC, Vancouver.

Babs Jaggard of Victoria, a former Pacific Coast Singles champion, is the Vancouver Island Fund representative and further information can be obtained by phoning him at 4-8149.

Duncan July 1 Fete Arranged

Local Groups Appoint Special Committee to Spearhead Effort

DUNCAN—Fate of the well-known Duncan July 1 celebration was decided Thursday when a handful of people decided to "carry on" despite the withdrawal of Cowichan Community Centre Association from direction of the event.

Eleven people attended a special meeting to decide the future of the celebration. It was forced by the decision of the Community Centre to discontinue responsibility of organizing the celebration, owing to increasing work at its grounds on James Street.

Thursday's meeting lasted for nearly two hours. Walter Tempest, representing Cowichan branch of the Canadian Legion, finally put forward a motion "to carry on." This was seconded by Mrs. B. Mackie of the Duncan Girls' Drill Team.

TEMPORARY COMMITTEE

Following this motion a temporary committee was appointed to seek support from various organizations in arranging the celebration. Members are Ald. Jack Dobson, Mrs. Mackie, W. L. Matthew and

The history of the July 1 celebration was reviewed by Ald. Dobson, chairman, who said it had been in operation since 1944.

Mrs. Mackie said that the drill team was formed to take part in the July 1 celebration, and should the event be held this year, her girls would be in the parade.

Support to the celebration was given by Dr. D. G. Lott, Riding Club; R. Nicol, Elks Club, and Pete Helin, who said he would approach IWA Local 180 to arrange the loggers' sports.

JAYCEES APPROVE
The Jaycees representative said that his organization had passed a motion at its last meeting to the effect that the July 1 celebration be continued.

He said the Jaycees thought that one plausible way of securing an organizing committee would be to invite all service clubs and other interested groups to attend a meeting. The Jaycees believed that an operating committee could be selected comprising all the organizations, he said.

Another meeting will be held shortly when it is hoped every organization in the district will have a representative present and a permanent committee will be appointed to arrange the celebration.

Park Will Be Big Asset

THE LADYSMITH CHRONICLE

Local residents who have not visited Ivey's Green Park in the past few months are due for a big surprise. The park has been completely transformed this winter and will now rank as one of the outstanding tourist attractions on the Island. Only time will tell the extent to which Ladysmith will benefit from this extensive and imaginative development program, but it is certain to have an effect on the economic life of this city.

The park as it is today and as it will be when it is fully developed is a tribute to the foresight of Mr. Guthrie and the other district residents who shared his dream. It is also a credit to the anonymous members of the forestry division's park planning development who combined taste and imagination in making the best possible use of the land at their disposal.

Buying Indian Land

THE COWICHAN LEADER

The offer of over $38,000 for 47 acres of Indian land for housing purposes seems hardly enough in view of the location of the property.

Situated on the north-west side of Duncan, it is easy to imagine this piece of land, under active development, becoming a modern link between the built-up areas which at present surround it on three sides.

For Duncan the Indian land on its borders has always been a problem. It is true to say that the land is far more of a problem than the Indian.

We are sure that the residents of this community are anxious to do the right thing by the Indians as fellow citizens. An offer of less than $1,000 per acre for land in the centre of population of this district is not one to commend itself to any white person who has had any private property dealing here during the past few years.

Surely we can do a little better.

Shouldn't Be Overlooked

THE REVIEW, SIDNEY

Just because it happens so regularly, we shouldn't overlook the magnificent showing of the residents of Galiano Island in "going over the top" in record time in the current Red Cross drive. Galiano islanders take a real pleasure out of providing leadership in this annual worthwhile campaign. Year after year their objective is attained long before that of any other centre in this territory.

This year's showing in the Red Cross drive is a real credit to the canvassers on Galiano, who took their job seriously and set such an impressive record. All communities make records of some kind, but we can think of none more commendable than the record set by Galiano so regularly in supporting this great humanitarian organization.

Meanwhile, the Red Cross campaign is dragging a little in some parts of this area. We should all take a leaf from Galiano's book and greet each canvasser with a smile and a generous donation.

Nanaimo Business in March Improved Over 1954 Level

NANAIMO—National Employment Service monthly report issued here Friday indicates a healthier condition of business generally than in same month last year.

Building, logging and sawmills here are setting the pace for steady employment. Thirty new homes in one subdivision will be started soon as ground now being cleared is ready, an apartment block in Newcastle townsite to cost $140,000 is under way, while demolition of an old Commercial Street building is advanced to make way for a new Jean Burns store to cost $180,000.

However, there is still a surplus of carpenters and building laborers pending actual construction of the larger projects.

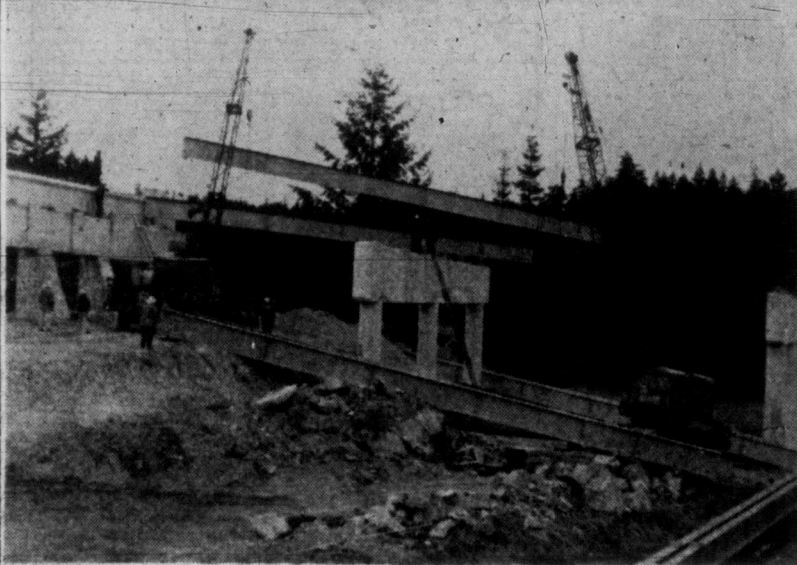

Plumbing and wiring subtrades are at the roughing stage on the new federal building. Sawmills are working at near-peak production with few layoffs, but some mill men are out of work because of the fire that destroyed A. Vangar's Extension Lumber mill recently.

Home building, rentals and sales of larger tracts of land for subdivision have created a steady business at most real estate offices. Opening of the Farm Laborers in Short Supply Throughout Cowichan District

DUNCAN—Farm workers, both married and single, are in short supply in this area and there is little hope of meeting existing orders, according to R. S. Robinson, Duncan manager of the National Employment Service.

In his report for March he said the farm labor shortage is due to higher rates of pay prevalent in the logging and sawmill industries.

Dairymen of the district are disappointed with their recently assigned quotas. Egg prices are holding fairly steady but there are indications of a reduction hatch this spring, and the hog market is weak. There appears to be just enough hay to carry through to the new crop and a slight weakening in feed prices is apparent, he said.

Turning to the general situation in this area, Mr. Robinson said "the total of work applicants is considerably higher than a corresponding date one year ago, solely because of weather conditions where snow and cold weather has forced closure of logging operations." A general return to the woods now is taking place, and within the next week the total of job applicants will be reduced materially, he said.

HEAVY CLAIMS

Construction work is just opening up and there is the usual spring demand for farm workers.

Heavy snows which began in the higher areas Feb. 25 and continued for several days forced cessation of all logging operations. An unprecedented number of claims for unemployment insurance benefits for one day were received on Feb. 28.

Cold weather and further snowfall prevented resumption of logging in most camps until March 21, when many woodworkers returned to their jobs.

Recall according to seniority has been the order up to the present and the few replacements requested have been available. The prospects for steady operation in the coming months are bright.

Gas Ignites Aboard Boat, Man Burned

CAMPBELL RIVER—Fred Hopton, who on Friday was filling the tank of a 45-foot gasboat owned by Mrs. Jean Burns of Nanaimo, suffered burns to his right hand and arm when the gas ignited.

He extinguished his burning clothing by dipping his arm in the river, and after treatment at Lourdes Hospital was discharged.

The vessel was moored near the B.C. Air Lines Ltd. float on Campbell River Spit.

Fireman Allan Bunting, equipped with a respirator, entered the cabin and extinguished the fire. Considerable damage was done to the interior of the boat, and the exterior was damaged to a lesser degree.

CONNOISSEUR INSULTED

NANAIMO—A CPR policeman told this story at the trial of William Schwede, charged with trespassing on CPR property.

He found Schwede asleep in a box car with an empty skin bracer bottle beside him, but the accused denied that he had drunk the contents.

"Not so," he said. "I only drink after-shave lotion." Not being able to pay a $5 fine and $5 costs, he was sentenced to seven days at Oakalla.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
by Harold R. Foster

Our Story: WHEN THE DRIFTING SHIP STRUCK SHORE ALETA AWOKE WITH A START AND LOOKED INTO THE WILD FACES OF THE PATZINAKS AS THEY STORMED OVER THE RAIL.

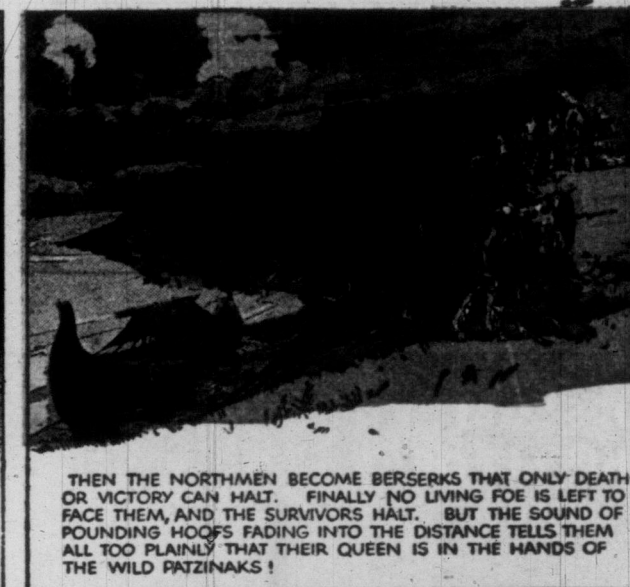

HER FIRST AND ONLY THOUGHT IS FOR HER BABIES. SHE CLAWS UP A FLOOR BOARD AND PUSHES THEM DOWN INTO THE LUGGAGE SPACE.

EVEN THEN SHE MIGHT HAVE ESCAPED, BUT INSTEAD DRAWS HER ONLY WEAPON, A TINY JEWELLED DAGGER, AND STANDS OVER HER CHILDREN.

HER WARRIORS ARE DRIVEN BACK BY THE FIRST VICIOUS SURGE OF THE PATZINAKS. BEFORE THEY CAN HEW THEIR WAY FORWARD AGAIN THEIR QUEEN IS GONE!

THEN THE NORTHMEN BECOME BERSERKS THAT ONLY DEATH OR VICTORY CAN HALT. FINALLY NO LIVING FOE IS LEFT TO FACE THEM, AND THE SURVIVORS HALT. BUT THE SOUND OF POUNDING HOOPS FADING INTO THE DISTANCE TELLS THEM ALL TOO PLAINLY THAT THEIR QUEEN IS IN THE HANDS OF THE WILD PATZINAKS!

IN THE EARLY DAWN WHEN THEY HAVE BURIED THEIR DEAD, THE WARRIORS SWEAR AN OATH UPON THEIR WEAPONS: THAT THEY WILL KNOW NO FEAST OR PASTIME, NO COMFORT OF HOUSE OR HOME, NO REST OR EASE UNTIL THEY HAVE FOUND THEIR QUEEN, OR DEATH.

AND THE DAWN ALSO BRINGS PRINCE VALIANT STRIDING DOWN THE PORTAGE, EAGER TO SEE ONCE AGAIN THE FAIR FACE OF ALETA.

STRAITS CHALLENGERS FROM ALL OVER

(Things are going swimmingly, as these reports, written by hand by our Very Own Island Digest correspondents, prove beyond a doubt.)

BUMBLE HILL.—It is not clear yet whether Bumble Hill will have an entry in this year's race to see who can swim Juan de Fuca Strait.

Lem says he is sure he can swim Juan de Fuca, but he isn't so sure he can swim straight.

Most citizens agree, as Lem seldom walks straight, either. But they think he might make it, if he is allowed to follow a zig-zag course.

WALLOPEM BEACH.—It is definitely certain Wallopem Beach will be represented by someone who will attempt to challenge the cold water of Juan de Fuca Strait.

However, it has not been decided yet who will be the challenger, things being pretty quiet here, this being the off-season, like.

However, when it is the on-season, and things aren't so quiet, we will for sure have an entry to challenge the cold waters.

Unless someone throws cold water on the whole idea.

LUNCHVILLE, V.I.—This beautiful Island town on the shores of the sky-blue waters is all agog about long distance swimming.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Yorik, leaders of the social whirl, are especially interested. At a recent elder and doughnut soiree, Mrs. Yorik said Mr. Yorik was certainly going to become a long distance swimmer, and the longer the distance the better, as long as it is away from here.

The Hotel Splendiferous, (licensed premises) has entered into the spirit of channel swimming by watering the beer even more than usual.

Mr. B. Cayerfill is also a likely starter. He has been practicing his side stroke in the watering trough in the town square. Mr. Cayerfill is convinced only a side-stroke can get him from one side to the other. So far, he has practiced on one side only, as he has always taken a one-sided view of things.

GOON CENTRE.—Naturally, Goon Centre will be represented in the attempt to swim Juan de Fuca Strait. The mayor and leading citizen of Goon Centre, Mr. Abner Goon, has been in strict training under the management of his trainer, Mrs. Abner Goon.

Mr. Goon being a superb athlete but not used to water (except as a chaser), Mrs. Goon has been getting him accustomed to the unusual fluid by holding his head under it for increasingly long periods of time.

There is no doubt this will be completely effective, sooner or later.

GLINZ LAKE PROJECT TO COST MORE THAN $15,000

City YMCA's Camp Thunderbird To Be Rebuilt to Higher Standards

Camp Thunderbird, Victoria YMCA Glinz Lake centre where hundreds of local boys have been introduced to group camping, will be rebuilt in a major construction job starting within the next few weeks.

Cost of the undertaking, financed from trust funds for that purpose and separate from the association's budget, is estimated to be from $15,000 to $20,000.

The work will be done in two stages—the first, about 80 per cent of the total, will be completed in time for this year's summer season. The second will be finished next year.

Decision to proceed with the job follows more than two years' planning. Reconstruction was approved to avoid waste on costly repairs which could have prolonged the life of many existing structures for a short time only.

Designed by architect Rod Clark, the buildings will be finished in heavy siding and durable roofs. The objective has been to bring the obsolescent camp up to standards which will rival those of any of its type in western Canada.

The big recreation hall, in its present form the product of volunteer work by the Y's Men's Club, will undergo sweeping renovation to add to its attractiveness and wider use.

Modern kitchen facilities will be attached to give it double utility as a dining hall as well as games and gathering centre for camp program.

REPLACEMENTS

Old huts, falling into disrepair in recent years, will be replaced by new buildings, raised on concrete slab floors. Where existing structures are still suitable, they will be improved and redecorated to serve special purposes as administration and operational units.

given to the waterfront for the camp's swimming program which is a vital part of the schedule.

Improvements in sanitation last year will be expanded, and particular attention will be paid to health units, including a new sick bay.

Within the near future additional level playing space will be acquired to permit wider activity in group games.

"We want to give the boys the best possible at the camp without eliminating its character," George Gordon, chairman of the boys' work and camp committee explained.

"There will still be lots of opportunity for robust activity. There will be no reduction in the wilderness attraction of the lake or softening of the program. But fundamental health needs will receive greater attention and the campers will be housed more comfortably. It will stay a boys' camp, but a good one."

Toronto Girl 'In Hiding' Before Swim

Strait swim hopeful, Janice White, 18, plans to go into 'hiding' next Tuesday noon, cutting herself off from public contact until 2 a.m. Wednesday when she will appear at a pre-arranged take-off point to try to swim Juan de Fuca Strait.

"Nobody will be able to find me," she said this morning before her daily work-out in Victoria harbor.

Her departure point—still undisclosed—is "an ideal place to leave from; couldn't be better," she said. It will provide press, radio and TV men a vantage point from the beach as the young Torontonian prepares for her departure.

She does not want a crowd around her on the epic morning, and stressed this today. Miss White feels her swim should not cause a commotion and expressed surprise when told there would probably be a crowd on hand to wish her well when she wades into the water next Wednesday.

CONDITIONING

Her views on training are somewhat unorthodox. "Actual water training is not important. It's body-conditioning," she explained.

"You don't have to go in the water to train. Proper food and rest are the important factors," the swimmer said.

Taking advantage of currents and swimming on a diverted course, she estimates she can swim across in 12 hours.

American swimmer Bert Thomas, 29, is continuing his training program with daily morning dips and from now until his projected attempt in late April or early May will swim "on course" during the afternoons.

He plans to be swimming off Clover Point Sunday about 4 p.m.

Retired Teacher, Beatrice Cooke, Passes at 75

A private funeral will be held Monday at Hayward's Funeral home for Miss A. Beatrice Cooke, retired school teacher who is known to thousands of ex-students of Monterey, Lampson Street and Willows schools. She died Thursday in her 76th year.

Miss Cooke was born in Victoria. She was prominent in IOOE activities, especially those relating to educational projects. She was also interested in the Girl Guide movement and was noted for her love of nature study.

Her last residence was 873 Humboldt Street, where she lived with her only surviving relative, a cousin, Miss Catherine Wilson.

Cremation will follow the services. Friends are asked not to send flowers.

'REAL TROUPER' HOME

Happiness Reigns In Schwabe Family

By TONY DICKASON

You couldn't see a happier family!

From the curly-headed tot of the household to daddy, everybody beamed. Their joy was so tangible you could almost fill your pockets with it.

This is the Schwabe family today, together at last after two weary months filled with suffering and worry.

It all centred on pretty dark-eyed Mrs. Jacqueline "Jackie" Schwabe, home Friday after two operations in the internationally-famed Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minnesota. For a while it was touch and go whether she would be cured from her rare sickness or not.

But she made it.

"I feel fine but tired. The doctors say it will take a few months to feel normal again," she said.

She suffered from an ailment which upset her metabolism to the point where fainting spells were common. Cause was believed to be a minute body organ. Two operations in Victoria failed to find it. The second operation at Mayo discovered an evellet tumor in the pancreas. The pancreas was removed.

GRIM

The first operation at Mayo "wasn't bad," recalled Mrs. Schwabe, but the second was "grim."

Said husband George who returned with his wife after three critical weeks at her bedside: "The doctors said she was One of the best patients they ever had—a real trouper."

She looked thin, sitting on the couch with blonde little 18-month-old Jackie Jr. twisting happily in her lap. She's down to 99 pounds from an accustomed 125.

Her reaction to homecoming: "This is Heaven on earth. Is it ever good to be home!"

Wee one Jackie "just about knew me, but not quite," she said of the smallest member of the household.

MANY FLOWERS

Front room of the comfortable though small home at 1923 Quamichan Street is massed with flowers received from neighbors and friends.

While the long uphill climb for Mrs. Schwabe has almost ended, it hasn't quite. With pancreas removed she can't produce insulin, which means it has to be taken artificially. In other words, she is a diabetic.

Seated on the living room sofa in a black housecoat, Mrs. Schwabe expressed appreciation for the help neighbors and friends—and especially the Victoria Lions Club—had given.

She was the Lions who raised more than $5,000 to meet her tremendous medical bills.

"I'd never be better if it wasn't for the Lions," she said gratefully.

Her homecoming will be marked in a slightly different manner Sunday.

"Jackie" Schwabe will be who will preach the sermon at the service.

Major Work Starts Soon

By DICK FREEMAN

New apartment dwelling construction worth nearly $200,000 was undertaken this week in Victoria and Oak Bay.

The activity supports the construction industry's contention that the saturation point in apartment buildings is still far from being reached.

Sutton & Sons, with a low tender of $44,000, has been awarded a contract to build an apartment building for Peter Rapanos at the intersection of Fernwood Road and Johnson Street. Architects are Clark & Clayton.

In Oak Bay, a permit has been issued Gordon Lovitt for a $90,000 apartment building at 2114 Cadboro Bay Road. It's a three-story, 16-suite project. Preliminary work already has been started.

The Lovitt contract follows closely the DiCastri-designed $60,000 plush apartment block being built by contractor George Wheaton on Sattelle Avenue. It has a Discovery Island outlook.

Several new apartment blocks soon will be started in the newly-zoned Oak Bay section of Haultain Street.

Church Planned

A survey of other construction reveals plans have been completed for erection of a new church building in Victoria.

Rev. Paul Hoch, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, says the proposed church will be a high Fort Street location between Moss and Craigdarroch, opposite the new Central Junior High School.

The working drawings have been completed and tenders for erection of the building will be invited shortly by the architects, Clark & Clayton.

The original church of Grace Lutheran was on Blanshard Street, at Queens Avenue, but the property was sold some time ago and at the moment the congregation is without a home.

The new chapel on Fort Street, when completed, will be

Woman Injured In 3-Way Crash

Injured in a three-vehicle collision on Old West Road at about 1 p.m. Friday was Mrs. Olive Norman, a passenger in a car driven by Henry C. Oldfield, Oldfield Road.

She received stitches for scalp wounds.

Saanich police said a car driven by Charles A. Adams, Old West Road, was in collision with the Oldfield vehicle, which then glanced off a parked Saanich municipal truck.

A municipal worker, Charles Youell, Dalmeir Road, was working on the road at rear of the truck when the Oldfield auto snapped a rake from his hand.

Wallace to Unveil Memorial Plaque

Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace, donor of a plaque honoring 41 former Shawinigan Lake School students who fell in the Second World War, will unveil the plaque at a special service in the school chapel Sunday at 11 a.m.

The memorial plaque will be dedicated by Dean P. R. Beattie of Christ Church Cathedral, who will preach the sermon at the service.

Gordon Head Bids

Greater Victoria school district No. 61 is preparing to issue call for tenders on a new elementary school at Gordon Head.

The architects, Sharp & Thompson, Berwick, Pratt & Charles E. Craig have the working drawings nearly ready and it is expected that contractors may be asked to figure by the second week of April.

More time is needed for completion of plans and specifications on the $500,000 Colquitz Junior High School. Asked for an approximate date when this project will go to bid, architect Craig predicted July.

Jubilee Changes

Extensions to the staff dining room at Royal Jubilee Hospital, long contemplated, has now been authorized by the board.

Proposed two-story concrete block addition, 40 by 40 feet, is designed to provide necessary dining space to fully take care of the ever-growing staff of the hospital.

Plans and specifications for the addition have been prepared by architect Whittaker & Wagg.

Special feature in the construction will be the use of the latest-type open-web light steel reinforcing in floors and ceiling to give a single, uninterrupted span from wall to wall.

Tenders will be invited soon for the completion of the contract, cost of which is estimated at $25,000.

Brewery Job

Phoenix Brewing Co. Ltd., which during the past year has carried out costly extensions to the Lucky Lager Brewery plant at 1921 Government Street, now plans complete reorganization of the plant's electrical system.

Simpson & McGregor, Langley Street, have been retained as electrical consultants, and Whittaker & Wagg have been

'Quake Shakes' Victoria Area

A moderately strong earth tremor, with its epicure within 65 miles southeast of Victoria, was felt by a number of residents Friday night and was recorded on the seismograph of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Saanich.

The quake occurred at 10:56 p.m. and originated in the Puget Sound basin.

Many residents, especially near the waterfront, reported they felt the tremor which lasted for about two minutes. Dishes rattled, furniture vibrated, and some cracks appeared in wall plaster.

W. Milne, observatory seismologist, reported the tremor's intensity was between three and four. (An earthquake with an intensity of five or six usually causes damage.)

Rural Saanich To Ask Province For School Plans

Rural Saanich School Board No. 63 will ask the provincial government to supply architectural plans for a proposed school building program to be submitted to ratepayers for approval in December, it was learned today.

The school board's action is based on a suggestion made by Saanich Cllr. S. W. Brock at a council meeting recently.

Mr. Brock pointed out that the department of education had supplied Fraser Valley School District No. 65 with plans for 11 schools. The mainland board was thus able to save $22,000 in architectural fees, he said.

Mr. Brock felt the education department should apply the same policy to School District No. 63.

World Message Planned By Witnesses

A spokesman for Jehovah's Witnesses today announced plans for delivering a special message to the world.

Mr. C. Roberts and Mr. D. Porter, local presiding ministers of the Victoria East and Victoria West congregations, revealed some of the details of this special campaign, which includes sponsoring the public lecture entitled "Christendom or Christianity—Which One Is the Light of the World?"

All congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses throughout the world will participate. Mr. Roberts and Mr. Porter will each deliver this discourse locally. At a public meeting in the Kingdom Hall, 1412 Broad Street, at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday, April 3.

After the discourse a new 32-page booklet containing what is described as "extraordinary information" will be given to each person in attendance, the spokesman said.

HEADLINES OF THE WEEK

THE POWER OF POSITIVE THINKING For Young People

(A revision of Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's best two-year best-seller "The Power of Positive Thinking" the following is one of a daily series of articles specially directed to young people but helpful to all ages.)

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

CHAPTER XI

YOU ARE WHAT YOU THINK

You are what you think. That is one of the most important facts about yourself. You've heard of the psychologist William James? He was one of the wisest men our country even produced. In a period when men were discovering the marvels of science, he said something I hope you will never forget. He said "The greatest discovery of my generation is that human beings can alter their lives by altering their attitudes of mind."

So get rid of your worn-out thoughts, if you don't like the kind of person you are. Fill your mind with fresh, new, creative thoughts—thoughts of faith and kindness and generosity. Get rid of negative thoughts. Become a positive thinker. Do this and you'll remake yourself.

I know some young people who are always happy and because of that characteristic they interest me so much that one day I asked one of them her secret. She was on her knees in the family vegetable garden, weeding strawberries, and she sat back on her heels—willing enough to be interrupted—and grinned at me.

"You're a minister," she said "you ought to know."

I agreed about being a minister, but I still wanted her to tell me why she could whistle while weeding strawberries, not a particularly inspiring job as anybody can testify who has ever tried it.

You can think your way out of failure and unhappiness. You can think your way to success and happiness. Your life is not primarily determined by outward condition and circumstances but by the thoughts that habitually occupy your mind. A modern psychologist has said, "There is a deep tendency in human nature to become precisely like that which you habitually imagine yourself to be." The chief thing about a human being is an area in the head called the mind. Actually your body is only for the purpose of carrying the mind around. In the thoughts that are generated in the mind is your whole life. Marcus Aurelius, wisest man in the Roman Empire, said, "A man's life is what his thoughts make of it," and Emerson, a very wise American, said, "A man is what he thinks about all day long."

MAKE THOUGHTS WORK

Thoughts have power. You can think yourself into or out of situations. You can make yourself ill with your thoughts; you can make yourself well. Positive thoughts create around you an atmosphere in which positive developments may live. To change something which is working against you, start

NEW PLAN TO MEET SYMPHONY PATRONS

Symphony-goers Sunday and Monday will be greeted with a novel program designed to encourage financial support to the struggling Symphony Society.

Superimposed on the face of each program will be a blank cheque which patrons may fill out with the name of their own bank, their donation and signature, then turn the program face into the door on their way out.

The scheme is designed to gain bigger donations from the comparatively large number of supporters the symphony orchestra has in Victoria.

Officials estimate there are 1,500 admissions to each concert, whereas in Toronto, a much larger city, only about 700 more persons attend concerts. Their support is heavier financially, however.

A gross deficit of $10,000 for the past season's concerts is faced by the society. The amount includes about $5,000 in musicians' wages, but none have yet complained, says conductor Hans Gruber.

Additional contributions to the society may be mailed or taken to 1318 Broad, Victoria Symphony office.

thinking differently. Do not accept unhappy circumstances; instead form a picture in your mind of circumstances as they should be. Hold firmly to that picture. Believe in it; pray about it; work at it to bring it to pass. This is one of the greatest laws of the universe. It is, in three words, believe and succeed.

Sentence Passed In Perjury Case

NANAIMO — Donald Lawrence McNeill was sentenced Friday to nine months in Oakalla after being convicted Thursday on a charge of subornation of perjury.

In passing sentence, Judge L. A. Hanna told McNeill that everything that had been in his favor had been considered, but "the courts of this land look on a charge of this kind with considerable concern because it reaches the foundations of justice."

The charge was laid when McNeill asked a friend, Gordon Doward, to lie under oath in Nanaimo police court when accused was facing a charge of driving while his license was under suspension.

Longridge Heads Legion Zone Council

Re-elected chairman of Victoria Legion zone council Thursday was Col. R. B. Longridge, Pro Patria branch.

New vice-president is Mrs. J. Corp, and secretary is Norman Wharfe.

The meeting set up a committee to investigate structure of the Canadian Corps of Commissioners, acting on advice of Pro Patria branch, which heard charges recently of regimentation and suppression of individual rights against the war veterans' security group.

Old Family Custom Proved Helpful

"Mother has always made me commit to memory whatever Bible verse we chose for the day's motto. It's an old family custom—and she laughed. "We have quite a lot of fun. Mother and Father and Walter and I, each of us coming up with a different text."

"The idea is to use that verse all day. Whenever I have something to do that's hard, or I don't like, I recite the verse all the time I'm doing it. This morning we chose the hymn, 'Brighten the Corner Where You Are.' That's the song I'm whistling and you must admit—looking complacently upon the neat job of weeding she was doing—"that this corner is a lot brighter because I'm here."

Later this same girl told me that her spiritual thinking had given her a feeling of inner joy and had made things go well.

HAPPY CHRISTIANS

I think if you'll do a similar job of research on your friends, picking the happiest ones you know, you'll find Christianity at the root of that disposition; not formal Christianity perhaps, but at least the Christian principles of kindness and generosity in their thinking. In other words: to be happy, think happy thoughts.

I knew one such man and I persuaded him—for he is very modest—to tell me about his business methods. I knew that his plant was modern in its equipment and that a spirit of good will pervaded the organization. His experience shows that a person or a business is made from how one thinks.

"That Book," he said, pointing to an old, battered copy of the Bible, "is the most up-to-date thing in this plant. Equipment wears out but that Book is so far ahead of us that it never gets out of date."

As with many people, once you get them started talking it is easy to keep them going. "My mother gave me that Bible when I went away to college," he continued without winking. "I took it, but I thought I didn't need it. I was a dope. I got my life into a terrific mess. Everything went wrong until I discovered that it was I who was wrong. I failed at everything until I came to realize that my principal trouble was wrong thinking. I was cocky; nobody could tell me anything. I gripped about everything and everybody. Nobody liked me."

MEANINGFUL WORDS

"One night I came across this Bible under a mass of papers. I got to thinking about my mother and as I did I leafed the book through and I came upon a sentence that seemed meant for me."

"What was the sentence?" I asked, for he acted as if he had finished the story.

"It was the opening of the 27th Psalm," he said. "The Lord is the strength of my life . . . in this will I be confident." I don't know why that one affected me so, but it did. I decided to put my faith in God, and as I did, I began to get hold of a new set of thoughts. I began definitely to think in a new and creative way based on faith."

Do you see what I mean?

Pat Gannon's costume look by Deja, left, features a brown linen sleeveless sheath dress and a three-quarter-length coat. The pleated cummerbund on the dress and the coat are tailored in an imported brown and white tweed effect pique. Pat's hat is a natural shade of linen with a straight perky bow square across the front. The full-length coat of Nona Damaske's Deja costume suit is cinnamon brown silk faille and is lined with the same silk print Dejours of the dress. The coat and dress are cut quite straight and the dress has a softly-draped wrapped waistline. The large black stitched Swiss straw is a Nodelle Original.

In Step With Style

By NONA DAMASKE

EASTER ELEGANCE—Looking forward to milder days ahead Deja has designed an interesting collection of costumes, ensembles and dresses which are smart, extremely versatile and perfect for the Easter season.

I can remember when I was in my teens, going shopping with my mother for a Deja dress. Next year the firm will celebrate its 40th anniversary. It's one of the oldest dress houses in Canada.

Many of the Deja stylings are adaptations of Herbert Sondheim of New York, and the majority of the fabrics are imported from Italy, France and England. Deja creates youthful styles for the half-size—a few of which I would like to mention as I receive so many inquiries about smart half-sizes.

A pale silver grey is the color chosen for a two-piece Pinpoint Jacquard imported yarn-dyed cotton. The softly tailored jacket has notched lapels, turnback cuffs and smoke pearl buttons. The straight slim skirt has a back pleat for easy walking.

The ever-popular coat dress is present in a navy and white imported silk and cotton tweed with white tissue linen collar and cuffs. A clean, cool brown and white hand-screened printed silk is used for a dress and jacket ensemble. The simply-styled dress has a square-cut neckline and cap sleeves. The three-quarter-length sleeved jacket perfectly accented with brown ribbon braid trim.

In regular sizes, the new silhouette of smooth and unbroken line is beautifully executed in a navy and white silk polka dot dress and a full-length linen coat. The companion coat and dress is a very important feature and will be seen in many variations as the warmer weather approaches.

The full-skirted late-day dress with its fluffy crinoline is still much in evidence. Hand-screened carded cotton in black and white Egyptian print is made up in a very eye-catching dress. The keyhole neckline and short sleeves are bound in black velvet and the very full skirt has hundreds of finely-stitched pleats. The lowered waistline is shown in a turquoise and white sheer silk and cotton cocktail dress. Tangerine flowers and chartreuse leaves are splashed on white—very effective in a princess-style dress of hand-screened silk and cotton.

Indeed a lovely collection bearing the Deja label which has always meant good fashion to Canadian women.

Pat Gannon wears an outstanding two-piece dress created by Deja in a blend of silk and cotton. The imported yarn-dyed Jacquard fabric is shown here in Elizabeth blue. The flattering portrait neckline is finished with a large bow low on the bosom. The waistline is noticeable but quite relaxed. Pat wears a small blue bead-trimmed hat by Nodelle and her Gossip pumps are in a new shade called Panama.

On Banana Boat Via Panama Canal to Balboa Fascinating Experience Says Frances Montgomery

By TERRY FRENCH

Ten thousand miles by banana boat from Seattle to the Panama Canal and across to Balboa and return, with all the fascination of seeing new lands and peoples, was the experience of Mrs. W. J. Montgomery and her husband, who returned to their View Royal home recently.

The United Fruit Company ship they traveled in had accommodation only for 12 passengers and a crew of 56.

"We read, slept, ate and drowsed in the sun," Mrs. Montgomery says. "When we got into the heat, they put up canopies over our deck chairs and with the whole ship at the disposal of 12 people, we could always find a quiet spot if we wanted to be alone."

The ship traveled light to Costa Rica. "There was rough weather for a while . . . but nothing serious . . . we were close to the coast all the way," Mrs. Montgomery remembers. "We did not get really warm until we were off the coast of Acapulco, Mexico, five days out on our voyage."

First stop was at Quepos (pronounced Kapos), largest town in Costa Rica. Situated in the mountains, "ideal climate, good plane service, centre of the big coffee and cocoa plantations and full of retired millionaires," is the way Mrs. Montgomery describes it.

"Labor is very cheap, too," she explained. At Quepos the passengers visited the banana plantations, "miles and miles of banana trees, stretching from Costa Rica to Panama."

"Biggest surprise was to find bananas grow up, not down. Each bunch is protected by nature with big banana leaves, which are even cool to touch," the returned traveler tells you. "We took some of the leaves to use as hats, only to discover that the banana oil leaves a stain on clothing that won't come out."

Native Costa Ricans, "black-skinned, living in bamboo huts and speaking a fluent Spanish," brought the bananas to railway cars on mules "wearing muzzles to keep them from eating the fruit."

Before loading, the bunches were dipped in a well of disinfectant, stems were painted to keep them from bleeding, and each bunch was put in a transparent plastic bag with perforations for ventilation. The freight cars were then whisked to the ship, where four conveyor belts worked day and night to get the bananas into the refrigerated holds as quickly as possible.

Thirty-five thousand bunches were loaded in Quepos and 30,000 in Guiltito.

Mrs. Montgomery describes these company towns of some 5,000 people, each as "hewn out of the jungle at terrific expense. With roads, light, water, and modern landscaped homes for the white employees. There are also golf clubs and movies . . . in Spanish, of course."

At Balboa, 13 days out of Seattle, the passengers disembarked, some going on to South America and others staying in Panama for a week or so. The ship proceeded to New York.

The Montgomerys visited Panama City; had lunch at the famed Strangers Club in Cristobal, "built out over the Atlantic where it is cool and breezy"; drove through the jungle along the original trail used 500 years ago while gold was transported across the Isthmus by mule train when treasure-laden ships from Peru landed at Panama.

Mrs. Montgomery shudders slightly when she adds, "the jungle was full of bushmaster snakes yet we saw people in there with nets catching the big blue butterflies used in making jewelry."

"The brilliant flowers were everywhere," Mrs. Montgomery reminisces. "We picked them and wore them . . . hibiscus from the hedges, bouganvillea, wisteria and the dancing lady orchids, about the size of a thumbnail. They grow without any earth, on the bark of trees and are the perfect shape of a little lady holding up her full skirts on either side."

"We ate papayas, too, that tasted like cantaloupe but the juice is good and sweet like apricots. They use papayas for tenderizing meat and steak down there, and the seeds, which contain pepes, are chewed as a relief from indigestion."

The return trip was made in an identical ship, "just another group of passengers." With a two-day stop at Port Amueller, Panama—again to load bananas.

In the Panama Canal itself, Mrs. Montgomery had a surprise. "The ship sailing from the Atlantic to the Pacific, actually sailed eastward. Another thing, the sun rises in the Pacific and sets in the Atlantic, just the reverse of what I had always believed."

"The canal itself is closed from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. and all ships arriving during these hours must wait. They told us there is an average of 22 ships a day using the canal. Ships from all over the world. It is fascinating!"

Mrs. Montgomery found Costa Rica "proud and independent with good government." In Panama she saw a similarity to Italy.

"The girls in Panama are all very pretty," she remembers. "They all make their own clothes, too, and I was told almost every girl owns a sewing machine."

"Most of the women carry umbrellas all the time . . . useful for rain or shine. And by the way, the only rain we had on the trip was a deluge in Panama."

Back in Seattle again, the Montgomerys watched the unloading of the bananas at 6 in the morning. "We felt we had a personal interest in that $500,000 cargo," Mrs. Montgomery concludes with a laugh.

"We'd do it again tomorrow," says Mrs. W. J. Montgomery (Frances to her friends). "They told us the slogan of the banana boats is: 'Every Banana a Guest, Every Passenger a pest'—but it never caught up with us."

Art Director Urges More People to Work With Hands

Mr. Thor Hansen, art director, public relations department, British American Oil Co. Ltd., spoke to Victoria Hand Weavers' Guild Tuesday evening. He told of the old days when all work was done in the home—each one used his hands to create the needful and the beautiful. People were happy in creating.

The machine, he said, has brought "hurry-up" living and the assembly line and many tread millions of jobs and no chance for man to use his God-given creative imagination. Mr. Hansen said, "Not that we should eliminate machinery," he said, "but more and longer leisure time one can turn to arts and crafts. You may not be very skillful to start, but as you follow a pattern your proficiency will increase and many can then put their own individual touch to the work."

Culture and folk art springs from the common people, the speaker pointed out. His definition of culture was happiness—to replace the frustrations of today. All seem to agree the world is in a mess—boredom, unhappiness and frustration shows in many modern books and some of the modern art. Many seem to be in a nightmare.

Canadians are now turning to arts and crafts, he said. Even doctors, between patients, are painting, weaving and hooking rugs. School teachers often follow crafts. The basement workshop is a joy to many.

By the use of the hands mental health is improved. In connection with the tourist trade, Mr. Hansen suggested a regional sale of work, not imports from elsewhere.

Miss Ella Robertson introduced Mr. Hansen and W. A. Mooney moved a vote of thanks.

Sponsored Religious Broadcasts Called 'Dangerous' by MP

OTTAWA (CP)—Commercial sponsorship of religious broadcasts on private stations was described Friday as "a dangerous step."

R. R. Knight (CCF, Saskatoon) told the Commons committee on broadcasting he opposes mixing any form of commercialism with religious broadcasts.

Tom Goode (L, Burnaby-Richmond) took an opposite view, saying he would prefer to have sponsored religious programs than none at all.

Radio stations in large cities might be rich enough to sustain unsponsored religious programs, he said, but smaller stations in small towns could not afford them. Canadians everywhere were entitled to hear religious programs.

Mr. Knight said he was not speaking out of prejudice against any religious denomination but religious programs should be preserved from commercial ties.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, said there is no regulation against commercially-sponsored religious programs on private radio and television stations.

However, the CBC, as a matter of policy, did not allow such broadcasts on its stations. The policy was the result of consultation with the CBC's national religious advisory council.

CHURCH PAGE

"A Message From the Dean" in the parish leaflet of Christ Church Cathedral says:

"It will not be easy to leave Christ Church Cathedral and Victoria, where I have enjoyed the work so much, and where my sister and I have been shown such very great kindness. I write this note in the confidence that you will understand that the wider interests of the church have a claim on one's allegiance. The diocese of Kootenay is an important and challenging area of the church's work. I ask you to pray that God will make me a good bishop and that my sufficiency may always be of Him."

"A tribute from the parish family" in the same leaflet says:

"We rejoice with the whole Canadian church in Dean Beattie's election to the bishopric of the diocese of Kootenay, but sadness lies at the heart of the cathedral parish at the thought of such a sterling priest going. Sincere congratulations from us all, and may God go with you Mr. Dean."

A liberty is being taken in the publishing of these notes, since they were intended as a personal communication between a priest and his parishioners, but justification lies in the interest of all of us in Dean Beattie's consecration and subsequent departure from the city.

The Anglican communion, although much the largest of any in Victoria, is apt to be diffident. Long tradition and the very characteristics of its adherents dictate a pastoral relationship integrated closely with the life of the people. The Church of England has little need of a bizarre or spectacular approach to the ministry, with the consequence that its activities seldom make headlines. Nevertheless, the great church on the hill has a profound and steady influence on the whole life of this community. Anglican or otherwise, and the priest who serves that church as dean bears a burden wider than the confines of his parish.

It is a matter of sadness to all of Victoria that Dean Beattie is leaving, but all will joy in his elevation to the bishopric and the fact that his election to the Kootenay diocese means closer ties, both within the ecclesiastical province and between the several Christian communions.

In the challenging Kootenays, Dean Beattie will find a diocese particularly fitted to his talents. The tradition is a long one, from the days of circuit-riding Rev. Henry Irwin, the beloved "Father Pat" whose exploits at the beginning of the century have made him a legend among the people.

He will find to welcome him the Ven. Archdeacon Fred Graham, who has served Nelson over 50 years; Canon W. J. Silverwood, distinguished scholar, writer and well-beloved "Argents" of young people's camps; Dean Leadbeater of St. Saviour's pro-cathedral; Archdeacon Catchpole and the Rev. Loren K. Smith of the beautiful Okanagan, and a host of other priests who have won the respect and affection of Christians of every communion in the Kootenays.

Dean Beattie will find in the Kootenays a great and fruitful field for work, in association with fine men, and atmosphere and surroundings in the best Christian tradition. More than that he will not ask, except our prayers. These he will have, in abundance.

May God go with you, Mr. Dean.

Hotel Wages Conciliation Board Named

Empress Hotel employees' wage dispute with the CPR will go to a conciliation board April 2 after eight months of negotiation.

Employees, members of Division 276 Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers (CCL), are asking a 15 per cent wage increase. Talks began last July.

The demand comes under a wage re-opening clause included in the present agreement, but does not allow for changes in fringe benefits, which must continue until the expiry of the present agreement.

Part of the long delay is due to the fact that an early government ruling stated such a wage re-opening would have to go to arbitration. The provincial department of labor has since changed its stand on this statement.

Conciliation board members are: chairman F. J. Lynn, Vancouver; employers' nominee F. W. Smelts, Vancouver; employees' nominee John McKenzie, Victoria.

TOUGHER THAN STEEL

NEW MARVELUBE in contact with the engine metal produces an invisibly thin chemical coating that covers vital parts where wear takes place. This coating substantially reduces the amount of wear. New Marvelube adds thousands of miles to the life of your car.

USE THE MATCHED PAIR — NEW MARVELUBE AND ESSO GASOLINES FOR MORE MILEAGE... BETTER PERFORMANCE

Engine deposits handicap your car's performance. Three years of laboratory and road tests prove that when Marvelube is used together with cleaner-burning Esso or Esso Extra gasolines there is a marked reduction in engine deposits. The result: faster acceleration, more mileage, better performance.

Bible Society Objective Exceeded

TORONTO—The British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada has reported that the $368,000 objective for the Third Jubilee Fund was exceeded by $40,000. This will make it possible for the Canadian auxiliaries to increase their contribution towards meeting urgent world needs, such as large-type illustrated gospels for new literates, new Bible houses in Africa and South America, Braille scriptures in twenty-six languages besides English, and new printing plates for Bibles in some of the world's major languages.

There was also a considerable increase in general giving during 1952, which will enable Canada to play a larger part in carrying on the work of translating, publishing and distributing the scriptures for every man in his own tongue, at a price he can pay.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN MONDAY

Monday's child is one of those extremely logical in reasoning, for as time passes his or her mental stimulation is great and will need a great deal of material for thought, study and reflection. Fine for early teaching ways by which this force can be used in inventive work—whatever requires mental swiftness combined with manual dexterity in execution. Fine chart for scientist, lecturer, scientist, government worker. Keep your offspring continuously busy, then you have no problem that idle time could bring.

of parliament for Moose Jaw Lake Centre, although Mr. Thatcher has flatly refused to identify the Social Credit who made the offer to him to be made leader of the Saskatchewan League. Mr. Thatcher rejected the offer.

J. G. Diefenbaker (P.C. Prince-Albert) has also been named as one of those approached in Saskatchewan to head up the Social Credit League. He denies that he was approached directly, and has added that he would not be interested in any such proposition.

Robert Kohaly, lone Conservative member of the Saskatchewan legislature, was the latest Saskatchewan political personage to be approached. He too has rejected the offer.

In Manitoba the Social Credit organization has made overtures to several members of the Manitoba Legislature. Among those reported to have been approached include Steve Juba, independent member for Winnipeg Centre, and Ald. H. B. Scott, PC member for Winnipeg Centre. Both have refused the offer.

Earlier the Social Crediters are reported to have made approaches to Duff Roblin, now Conservative leader; to Arthur Ross (PC-Arthur) and to Erick F. Willis. All have indicated in no uncertain terms that they were not interested.

Premier Bennett so far has met with little success in building up the Social Credit leagues in those two prairie provinces. But reports from Saskatchewan at least, received at the Ottawa headquarters of other political parties, indicate that he is persisting in his effort.

If Premier Bennett could win greater support in Western Canada for the Social Credit party his chances of moving into the federal political arena would be greatly strengthened.

Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta has demonstrated no great interest in the federal political field.

Solomon Low, member of parliament for Peace River, is the leader in the Commons of the 14 Social Credit members that sit on the opposition side of the House.

Rev. E. G. Hansell, member for Macleod, is president of the Social Credit Association of Canada. Both are confident that the party will increase its strength at the next general election.

Premier Bennett was a Conservative before he went over to the Social Credit. He is said to be convinced that he can persuade other Conservatives in the western provinces to join the Social Credit leagues.

Roosevelt Made Demands On Swiss, Newspapers Charge

GENEVA (AP)—Two influential Swiss newspapers claim the late President Roosevelt wrote a letter making demands on Switzerland "not far from Stalin's demands on his allies to force a march through Switzerland."

The Basler Nachrichten, a Liberal Democratic paper, and Die Tat of Zurich, independent, call on the Swiss government to release the alleged letter in view of American publication of the Yalta record.

"If they have already started in America to bare the sins of the past, there is something in this field in Switzerland to catch up on," the Basler Nachrichten said.

The Swiss should be a letter of President Roosevelt to the Federal Council of the summer of 1944 in existence containing remarkable demands, whose essence lay not far from Stalin's demands on his allies to force a march through Switzerland.

The Yalta papers showed that Stalin asked Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to march through neutral Switzerland to flank German defense lines.

The Basler newspaper says the government had often been asked about this letter, but had always remained silent, without denying its existence.

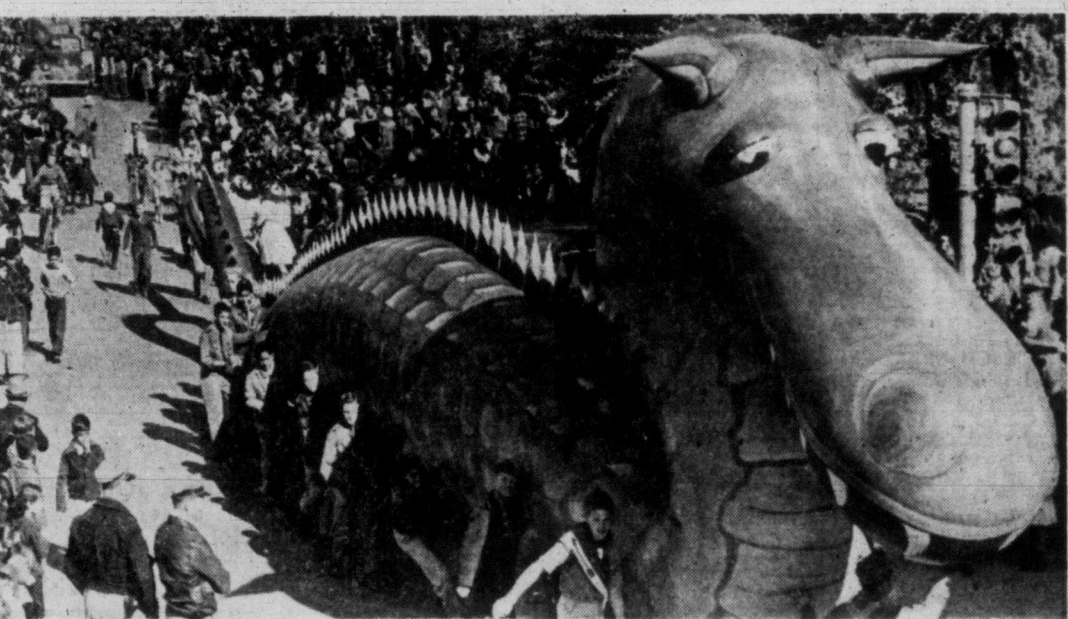

A Swiss government spokesman asked yesterday about the letter, would neither confirm nor deny its existence.

Vancouver Lawyer Faces Charge

VANCOUVER (CP)—John A. Sutherland, veteran criminal lawyer, was arrested Friday in the barristers' room at police headquarters on a charge of being in possession of narcotics.

Sutherland and a client, now sought by police, were reported to have been in a house raided Thursday by the city drug squad.

In court he was remanded one week and released on his own recognizance.

BOY-EATING DRAGON from Newark, N.J., is this giant rubber balloon which will be one of 16 inflatable figures which Chamber of Commerce members are bringing to Victoria for big parade on May 23. This fellow, 80 feet long, devours 20 school boys every time he goes out. He needs their feet for propulsion.

on her children and grandchildren.

Mr. Garth Lapp, 21, Trenton, Ont., wife of an electrical technician at the Trenton RCAF station, won $55,000 on second-place Tudor Line. They have no children. The husband is a leading aircraftman.

GIVEN TICKET

Mrs. Lapp plans to give some of her prize money to her mother, who lives in Vancouver and bought her daughter the ticket shortly after Christmas.

And Mr. Lapp?

The RCAF gave him the day off to celebrate.

Robert Morgan, Toronto, plans to use his $55,000 for a trip to the British Isles. He's a Scottish-born carpenter and his wife hails from England.

K. G. Monteith of Etobicoke township, near Toronto, also won on Tudor Line. He's currently holidaying in the south.

An unidentified Regina, who used the initials "T.Y." was among the $55,000 winners.

The Irish sweepstakes is by far the biggest and best known in connection with the Grand National, but another sweepstakes—the Quebec Army, Navy and Air Force—also sold tickets on the race.

WINNERS UNKNOWN

Names of the winners in this sweepstakes will not be released publicly this time, it was learned today. It was understood officials were uneasy over a reported threat by Montreal police to crack down.

Merchants' Parking Proposal Gives Lead

Like most growing North American communities, the city of Victoria is faced with an acute automobile parking problem.

Unlike some others, however, which have given direction in solving the knotty problem, Victoria is being led by business into a novel, partial solution.

By April 15 through a co-operative effort of all the merchants of the 700 block of Yates, free parking to bona fide customers of most businesses in the block will be provided.

Attendants will park the cars from the office of Island U-Drive, 746 Yates, and customers will be permitted an hour's free shopping time. There will be spaces for a total 90 cars on two lots.

Another businessman, Jack Robbins of Hertz Drive Yourself, Douglas and Broughton, is launching a "park and shop" system through deals with individual merchants.

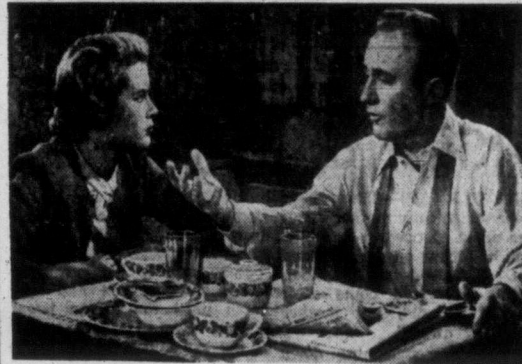

Of course, for years, many businesses have provided their own customers with free parking — firms like Hudson's Bay Co., B. & K. Stores, Standard Furniture, Safeway, Eaton's and many smaller with room for half a dozen cars at the rear of their premises.

Merchants of the 700 block Yates claim they constitute a complete shopping centre within the block. Those signed up for the free parking service to date include:

Cec Fletcher's Men's Shop, Ingledew's Ltd., Foster's Fur Store, Victoria Ltd., The Island Florist, Standard Furniture Co., Alan's Ladies' Wear Ltd., Paint Supply Co. Ltd., B. M. Clarke Ltd.

The Hat Shop, Bank of Montreal, Bank of Nova Scotia, Henry Birks & Sons Ltd., King's Shoes, Simpsons-Sears Ltd., Price & Smith Ltd., David M. Brown, Jeweler.

Scurrah's Ltd., J. Manton, Square Deal Shoe Repairs, Hocking & Forbes Sporting Goods Ltd. (soon to move onto Yates), Minnis Prescription Pharmacy, Arrow Furniture Co. Ltd., Mitchell & Duncan Ltd., Jusrite Photos Ltd.

B.C. Fishermen Will Demand Treaty for Pink Salmon

VANCOUVER (CP)—A demand for an international pink salmon treaty to eliminate a "dangerous" race for fish will be made here next week.

The demand will highlight the 11th annual convention of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers (AFL-TLC), representing some 8,000 fishermen and shoreworkers in British Columbia.

On the week-long agenda will be a charge that lack of proper regulation of pink salmon runs "has led to a dangerous race between Canada and the United States for the available salmon."

More than 100 delegates will recommend that a treaty be drawn up to place the Strait of Juan de Fuca, Puget Sound and Fraser River pink salmon runs under the control of a joint commission which would divide the catch and conserve the runs.

FUTILE HEROISM

Boy, 13, Fights Killer of Mother

SEATTLE (AP)—"He grabbed a pipe and hit my mother about four times. I tried to stop him. Then he hit me on the head and arm. I started out the door, hoping he would come after me. If he did, my mother would get away."

With tears streaming down his cheeks, 13-year-old Billy Margitich used those words to describe to police a domestic fight which led to the slaying of his mother and the suicide of his stepfather Friday.

Shot in the back as she attempted to flee a beating at the hands of her ex-husband, Holland Joslin, 42, was Mrs. Mary Joslin, 38. Joslin, poisoned, was found sprawled in the front seat of his car a few miles north of Mrs. Joslin's home.

Billy, whose head and arm was battered as he sought to defend his mother, told officers Joslin broke into the home early Friday and insisted that an assault charge be filed against him by Mrs. Joslin be dropped. Mrs. Joslin filed the charge after Joslin broke into the home and beat her recently.

BECOMES VIOLENT

The argument broke into violence when Joslin grabbed a pipe and started hitting Mrs. Joslin, Billy said. When the boy intervened, Joslin switched his attack to Billy.

The boy said he started to run outside and Joslin followed momentarily and then turned his attention again to Mrs. Joslin.

lin as she, too, ran outside. At that point, Billy said, Joslin drew a gun and shot his ex-wife in the back. She fell dead. Joslin ran to his car, swallowed some poison and sped north until the poison began taking effect. He lost control of the car and it crashed into a pole.

Car in crash at north end of Douglas was total wreck after snapping pole.

Three Injured in Saanich Crash; Policeman Identified as Driver

Three persons, one a city police constable, suffered serious injuries in a spectacular Saanich car crash at about 3:30 a.m. today.

Douglas Bobbie, 31, of 1827 Quaden Street, suffered a possible broken arm and shoulder and chest injuries.

FAIR CONDITION

Royal Jubilee Hospital authorities said the two men were in "fair" condition this morning. Condition of Miss Auld is "fairly good."

The accident occurred on Douglas Street, between Dieppe and Vanalman, near Royal Oak Veterans' housing subdivision.

Saanich police identified Brennan as the driver of a late-model car which was proceeding south on Douglas.

They said the car went out of control and careened about 700 feet before leaving the east side of the road and crashing into a stump and telephone pole.

The pole was broken by the impact.

Brennan, a member of the city force for less than six months, formerly was on the Vancouver police force for six years.

Police said the car was a total wreck.

Bulganin Approves Top Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin said today he takes a "positive attitude" towards views expressed by President Eisenhower concerning a Big-Four meeting.

Bulganin granted a special interview to a Tass correspondent in which he said the Soviet Union approved Eisenhower's idea "if there is in view a conference which would contribute to lessening of tension in international relations."

"In this connection," said Bulganin, "it must be pointed out that the Soviet government has already proposed to hold a great power conference in the near future at which the question of an Austrian peace treaty could be settled."

WOULD GO ANYWHERE

President Eisenhower said at his press conference Wednesday:

"There is no place on this earth to which I would not travel, there is no chore I would not undertake if I had any faintest hope that, by so doing, I would promote the general cause of world peace."

He commented on the changes in the Kremlin in the last two years and added: "You have at least the element of, let us say, faint hope that new individuals may be different from the old ones."

"That may make some explanatory talks very valuable; and as long as we are differentiated between a final so-called meeting at the summit, and exploratory talks, well, I could make a lot of concessions to have that carried out."

OTTAWA — Premier W. A. C. Bennett because of his ambitions to establish Social Credit as a national political force, will attract attention when he attends the preliminary federal-provincial conference to be convened here April 26.

The British Columbia premier is reported to have his aim fixed on becoming a federal political figure in the not too distant future. He is known to be striving to mould the Social Credit leagues in western provinces into a movement to try and displace the Progressive Conservative Party nationally.

Premier Bennett is the main driving force behind the scenes in promoting the expansion of

Violent Street Battles Protest Cut in School Aid

BRUSSELS (UP) — Tens of thousands of Belgian Catholics protesting a cut in parochial school aid defied a government anti-demonstration decree today and locked in violent street battles with 10,000 police.

Hundreds of injured, including a Catholic former premier, overflowed hospitals.

At mid-afternoon the government announced that 1,500 had been arrested. Yet the battle still raged through the streets and squares.

From all sides, the Catholic marchers punched through roadblocks to reach the inner city.

CAVALRY CHARGES

Police fought with clubs, tear gas, fire hoses and dull-edged sabres. They staged cavalry charges. They drove armored trucks into the milling mass of fervent demonstrators.

Overhead planes were used to radio the rioters' latest moves to police generals on the ground. Not since the rioting that dethroned King Leopold III five years ago had such disorder raged through the streets of Belgium's "Little Paris."

Object of the demonstrations was the Socialist government's new education bill which would trim $10,000,000 from the annual state subsidy of $70,000,000 to the Roman Catholic parochial schools.

Three Draws Mark U.K. Cup Soccer Semis

LONDON (Reuters) — Manchester City moved into the Football Association final today by edging Sunderland 1-0 while York City battled to a 1-1 draw with favored Newcastle United.

Manchester won its bid for the final round when Welsh international Roy Clarke booted in the winning goal.

First Division Newcastle seemed ready for victory as centre-forward Vic Keeble put them ahead of York 1-0 after 19 minutes. But Third-Division York's Arthur Bottom made a great solo run through the Newcastle defense in the 29th minute to knot the score.

York and Newcastle will replay their game Wednesday in Sunderland.

SCOTTISH GAMES

In the Scottish Cup semi-finals, both games ended in draws. Glasgow Celtic, hot favorites, managed only a 2-2 tie with Andrieanians while the division leaders, Aberdeen, also drew 2-2 with Clyde.

CHELSEA STILL ON TOP

In regular play, idle Chelsea remained on top of the English First Division as second-place Wolverhampton Wanderers were downed 1-0 by Burnley. (See scores, Page 3.)

Gunshot Halts 'Revenge Riot' In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (BUP) — Eight persons—three of them juveniles—were in police custody today on varied charges arising out of a "revenge riot" at an East-End dance hall Friday night.

Five of the youths appeared in police court today and were remanded until next Wednesday. The juveniles will appear in juvenile court next week.

The riot was not broken up until Constable Bailey fired a warning shot from his pistol after a 17-year-old youth had resisted the attempts of Constable D. A. Dunn to eject him from the dance hall.

Hundreds Hurt
As Catholics
Storm BrusselsProtest Cut
In School Aid

BRUSSELS (UP)—Tens of thousands of Belgian Catholics protesting a cut in parochial school aid defied a government anti-demonstration decree today and locked in violent street battles with 10,000 police.

Hundreds of injured, including a Catholic former premier, overflowed hospitals.

At mid-afternoon the government announced that 1,500 had been arrested. Yet the battle still raged in this city's ancient tree-lined streets and squares.

From all sides, the Catholic marchers punched through road blocks to reach the inner city.

Police fought with clubs, tear gas, fire hoses and dumdum sabres. They staged cavalry charges. They drove armored trucks into the milling mass of fervent demonstrators.

Local Woman's Horse Fell
At First Jump

A Victoria woman, holder of a ticket on Mariner's Log, which went down at the first jump in the Grand National Steeplechase today, says she is "not disappointed" and that the $1,400 she'll receive anyway "is not to be sneezed at."

Mrs. Jean McArthur, 639 Yates Street, was up bright and early with ear glued to her radio.

"The disappointing part of it was that the race for me was all over in what seemed to be seconds. If the horse had carried on for awhile it would have been much more thrilling," she said.

When Mariner's Log went down, Mrs. McArthur clicked off the radio, took the phone off the hook and had an hour's sleep to help relieve the strain of the past few days.

Another Island ticket holder was John Brown, 60, of Duncan, who had Mr. Linnett. His horse failed to finish.

Fire at Oakalla

VANCOUVER (UP)—Little damage was reported after a fire broke out in the east wing of Oakalla prison today.

Prison officials said the fire apparently started when a prisoner deliberately threw a cigarette into a drum of paint in a temporary paint store.

Drug addicts and habitual criminals are housed in the east wing.

Car in crash at north end of Douglas was total wreck after snapping pole.

Three Injured in Saanich Crash;
Policeman Identified as Driver

Three persons, one a city police constable, suffered serious injuries in a spectacular Saanich car crash at about 3:30 a.m. today.

Injured were: Constable Bernard Benjamin Brennan, 31, 1720 Davis street. He received a possible fractured left thigh and left arm, chest injuries and shock.

Douglas Dobbie, 31, of 1827 Quadra Street. He suffered a possible broken arm and shoulder and chest injuries.

Miss Jill Auld, 19, of 1153 Burdett Avenue, who received left hand and lower right leg injuries and multiple bruises. Her parents live at Qualicum Beach.

Royal Jubilee Hospital authorities said the two men were in "fair" condition this morning. Condition of Miss Auld is "fairly good."

The accident occurred on Douglas Street, between Dieppe and Vanalman, near Royal Oak Veterans' housing subdivision.

Saanich police identified Brennan as the driver of a late-model car which was proceeding south on Douglas.

They said the car went out of control and careened about 700 feet before leaving the east side of the road and crashing into a stump and telephone pole.

The pole was broken by the impact. Brennan, a member of the city force for less than six months, formerly was on the Vancouver police force for six years.

Police said the car was a total wreck.

Working as usual today at the Prince George planing mills, Henderson said "I couldn't have felt better when I heard the news."

The Toronto first-prize winner listened to the race broadcast with 11 of her grandchildren around her. Wife of Dudley Thomas, president of Copp Clark Co. Ltd., book publishers, she plans to spend the money.

Rescuers Reach Burning Plane

SEATTLE—A Honolulu-bound stratoscruiser ditched in the cold Pacific today and caught fire but the coast guard said a merchant vessel had reached the scene and was taking survivors aboard from three life rafts.

There were no reports of death or injury among the 23 persons aboard the Pan-American luxury plane.

Coast guard stations on the Oregon coast said the plane was about 35 miles off Cape Arago.

Two ships, the Lontoc and the tanker Idaho Falls, were near the scene but the coast guard said a third vessel was effecting the rescue. Planes were circling overhead and coast guard rescue craft were speeding from the Oregon shoreline.

A short time later the coast guard learned the third vessel, the freighter Hawaiian Educator, was first at the scene and had lowered its boats to pick up the survivors.

'Engine Falling Off' Pilot Radioes

The craft ditched after radioing its No. 3 engine was falling out of its mount.

Jules Ficke, station operations manager for Pan American at Portland, said the plane carried a crew of eight and 15 passengers. Thirteen of the passengers boarded at Seattle, two at Portland.

He said it was on a flight from Portland, Ore., to Honolulu and had left Portland at 10:15 a.m. PST.

A helicopter and three airplanes were dispatched from Port Angeles, Wash., and soon afterwards the liferafts were reported sighted.

The double-decker stratoscruiser, which can carry up to 31 passengers, carried five 20-man liferafts, food, Mae West lifejackets, Gibson girl radio equipment.
